MAN AND BROTHER TO FACE CHARGES FILED

Neighbors See Nightgowned Mother Forced From Sick Bed, Complainant Says

"Kidnaped" by her husband when she lay ill in bed, bundled up in a blanket and choked till blood poured from her throat—this was the asserted experience related today by Mrs. Lorraine Grassle, 29, of 536 East Maple avenue, Orange, who told Justice G. W. Ingle at Orange that her husband, Harry W. Grassle, 32, and his 18-year-old brother, Eugene, carried her into an automobile and took her to the insane ward at the county hospital. She was later "rescued," she said, by Attorney L. F. Coburn, who placed her in the home of friends at 727 West Chapman avenue, Orange.

After his purported disposing of his wife, Grassle was said by his wife to have taken their 3-year-old daughter to some of his friends and "hidden" her away from her mother. The mother has not seen the girl since, she said.

The alleged "kidnaping" incident, according to Mrs. Grassle, happened June 19, but apparently fearing her own safety should details be made public Mrs. Grassle declared she had told only a few about the case. Since her husband's arrest and since the newspapers yesterday "revealed" her "hiding place" in the report of the warrant, she said, she was willing to "disclose the purported abduction" details.

Both Grassles, after being arrested on charges of assault and battery, yesterday were released in default of $100 bail each, pending appearance in Judge G. W. Ingle's court at Orange, July 10, at 10 a. m. The husband then was rearrested on a charge of non-support, and today had been released on his own recognizance to appear at 9 a. m. next Saturday in the Santa Ana court of Justice John Landell. The complaints for all three arrests were said to have been sworn by Mrs. Grassle.

Following is Mrs. Grassle's own version of the kidnaping, as related to Justice Ingle:

"I had been ill for some time, and while I was lying in bed clad only in my nightgown and a kimono my husband came into the house, grabbed me in his arms and wrapped a blanket around me.

"I screamed and fought, but I was too weak to offer much resistance. 'What are you going to do?' I cried. He told me to shut up, that he was taking me to my doctor.

"I struggled, but he choked an

SEEK NEW CLUE TO 2 DEATHS IN INQUEST

(By United Press Leased Wire) LONG BEACH, July 3.—Hoping to clear up some of the mysteries surrounding the fatal shooting Monday of Henry D. Meyer, wealthy Pasadena merchant, and Mrs. Therese Doris, wife of a prominent local business man, the coroner's inquest over the bodies of the two victims was to be held here this afternoon.

Deputy District Attorney Dennis, Capt. Jesse Hunter of the Los Angeles homicide squad, and other crime experts are expected to assist Chief of Police Yancy in questioning witnesses at the inquest.

J. Clark Sellers, expert criminologist, has been called into the case by which the state hopes to prove that Charles W. Doris, husband of the slain woman, was responsible for, at least, the death of Meyer.

Sellers spent most of yesterday in the Doris apartment in Long Beach, where the tragedy occurred. Following his investigation, he declared he did not think Meyer fired the fatal bullets, as claimed by Doris.

On the other hand, defense attorneys profess to have evidence which they will "submit at the proper time," and which, they claim, will result in his acquittal of the charges at once.

A short time before the inquest was to be held, Doris' attorneys said they had instructed him to take advantage of his legal right and refuse to testify at the hearing this afternoon.

He is near the breaking point, his attorneys said, and they feared he would collapse if he attempted to take the witness stand and tell his story at the inquest.

HINT OFFICERS IN HUGE L.A. BOOZE RING

LOS ANGELES, July 3.—Charges of corruption in the Los Angeles police department, which resulted in the arrest of one officer and suspicion clouding the records of others, will be laid before the grand jury this afternoon, assistant Captain of Detectives Cato announced today.

Stories of alleged vice and liquor rings headed with police officers will be subjected to a thorough probe by the inquisitorial body, it was declared.

Patrolman S. H. Millsap is already under arrest and has confessed, other officers say, to being a party to a holdup of a downtown poker game some weeks ago.

ELECT 3 C. OF C. MEN

S. A. WOMEN AGAIN SUE 'HERB DR.'

Substitute Action Filed As $17,000 Bonds Asked From 'Alfalfa Sheik'

Substituted for a previous action involving the same issues, a suit was on file today in the Los Angeles county superior court against Rex H. W. Abrextondare, the so-called "alfalfa doctor," from whom Mrs. Jennie McFadden, and her daughter Miss Jennie McFadden of Altadena, seek to recover $17,000 in Liberty bonds.

The bonds, it is said, were those found concealed on the person of Abrextondare when he was lodged in the county jail here on a charge of practicing medicine without a state license. Prisoners at the jail, in stripping the "alfalfa doctor" of his clothing, found the bonds hidden in a stocking tied around his neck.

Two civil actions were promptly filed against Abrextondare, one by the McFaddens, formerly residents of Santa Ana, who claimed they had loaned the bonds to him under alleged fraudulent representations, the other being filed by Mrs. Ruth Deardorff Shaw, also a former Santa Ana woman, who had been a companion of the imprisoned "doctor." Mrs. Shaw's action was regarded in some quarters as a counter stroke, to hold possession of the bonds for Abrextondare.

Sheriff Sam Jernigan attached the bonds, acting in his official capacity in connection with the two civil suits.

In the new action, substituted for their first suit, the McFaddens name Jernigan and Mrs. Shaw as defendants, with Abrextondare. As concerned the sheriff, it was said, the suit was "friendly." It was viewed as a strategic move to transfer possession of the bonds, not only those attached in connection with their own prior suit, but also those attached by Mrs. Shaw, to the Los Angeles court.

Filing of the new action recalled the sensational charges hurled back and forth between Mrs. and Miss McFadden, of one side, and Abrextondare, on the other, at the time the first suit was filed. The Altadena women claimed that they had advanced $37,500 in all to Abrextondare, after Mrs. Shaw had introduced him into their home and he had represented to them that he needed the loans to protect him from great loss. He owned large properties and valuable gems in the east, that were mortgaged and about to be foreclosed, he told them, they asserted.

Rejuvenation Claimed. He had further won their confidence, they said, because of his claims made to scientific knowledge and the alleged discovery of an herb that would rejuvenate human beings. Abrextondare, was remembered, was credited with having claimed such discoveries, in public interviews given after his arrest, on the criminal charge here, and to have said that he was nearly 90 years old, instead of about 30, as he appeared to be.

Abrextondare established himself in their home, the McFaddens charged, and refused to leave, until they called the authorities to eject him.

Replying to their charges, Abrextondare declared that he had been virtually abducted into the McFaddens' palatial home. The money was a "gift" to him, he said, to finance his scientific research.

Abrextondare was convicted of the criminal charge here and appealed the case. He is now at liberty under bond, pending the outcome of his appeal.

Ask Realtors To Aid Ohio Storm Victims

LOS ANGELES, July 3.—Appeal for the 105 real estate boards in California to aid sufferers in the Lorain, Ohio, tornado of last Saturday was issued here today by President Henry P. Barbour, of the California association.

President Barbour's proclamation followed receipt of word from President H. Robert Ennis of the national board that Ohio real estate boards had requested assistance for the Lorain destitute.

VOTE $5000 FOR WHARF, CRANE AT HARBOR

Appropriation of $5000 for the construction of a wharf and loading crane at Newport harbor, "so that the county's million dollar investment there may be utilized," will be included in the budget for the fiscal year just opening, and the equipment will be provided immediately by the board of supervisors, it was made known today.

Immediate need of dock facilities for the unloading of rock and lumber shortly to be shipped into the harbor, as well as future requirements, caused the board to authorize the expenditure and order plans prepared. J. L. McBride, county superintendent of highways is preparing the plans and specifications upon which bids will be asked, it was announced.

The supervisors, who will be engaged next week in outlining the year's budget, decided to include the harbor improvement upon learning that a large quantity of rock was about to be hauled from Los Angeles harbor to Newport Beach and vicinity, for use in construction of the new coast highway.

"Hauling that rock over our boulevards will cost us a great deal more than the wharf and crane would cost," declared Supervisor George Jeffrey. "There wouldn't be much left of Newport boulevard, for instance."

"We have a million-dollar investment at the harbor now," said Chairman T. B. Talbert, "and there is no way to utilize it unless we provide facilities for shipping." Accordingly, the rock shipments, which will come from Catalina, is said, will enter Newport harbor instead of Los Angeles harbor, and the great barges will be unloaded at the county wharf.

Former Santa Ana Pair Hurt in Crash

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Meyer of Hollywood, formerly of South Broadway, Santa Ana, were slightly injured when their sedan overturned near El Modena yesterday afternoon. The couple were taken to Santa Ana for medical attention. No report of the accident had been made at the police station or sheriff's office here, it was said, and the cause of the accident is unknown to officers here.

TRAINS IN WRECK

STUEBENVILLE, O., July 3.—Two were injured seriously today when the Keystone Express, Pennsylvania limited, running between St. Louis and New York, crashed into a light engine that toppled into its path after leaving the rails of the west bound tracks.

TWELVE SEEK SECRETARY POSITION

Half of Directors First Offering to Resign to Remain on Board

Appointment of a committee to recommend a new secretary for the Chamber of Commerce and acceptance of the resignations of L. G. Swales, Dr. P. R. Reynolds and Charles F. Heil, as directors, were features of a meeting of the Chamber directors held yesterday afternoon, J. C. Metzgar, who is retiring as secretary after a service of thirteen years, announced today.

Charles C. Cotant, active vice-president of the Orange County Trust and Savings bank; A. N. Zerman, local feed and fuel merchant, and J. C. Wallace, realtor, were appointed as successors to the three directors resigning.

P. L. Purinton, Robert L. Brown and Cotant were appointed a committee to make investigations of applications for the position of secretary.

According to Purinton, chairman of the committee, twelve men have formally applied for the appointment. Asserting that he was not in position at this time to give the names of the applicants, Purinton said they were men who were now serving other chambers of commerce, or who had served in like positions in the past. He said, however, that all but two of the applicants are men residing outside the city.

Purinton also expected, he stated, that a number of verbal applications would be made.

Purinton, M. B. Wellington and George Dunton, three of the six directors who recently announced their intention of resigning August 1, have agreed, it was stated, to remain with the board.

First Step Is Taken

Naming of the three new men to the board was the first step in the plan for reorganization of the Chamber of Commerce, following precipitation of a crisis in the organization by the resignation of Metzgar and six members of the board, some weeks ago.

The new directors were chosen from a list of fifteen suggested at a recent mass meeting of members, when it was recommended that changes be made in the articles of incorporation and the by-laws permitting an increase in the number of directors. The number is to be increased from eleven to fifteen, thirteen elective and two ex-officio members.

$1100 Balm Asked As Crash Result

Damages amounting to $1122.45 were asked today in a suit on file in the superior court here against Davis M. Dwyer, with the Van Dien-Yong company, of Santa Ana, as plaintiff.

Complaint was based upon a collision between two trucks at the corner of West Chapman avenue and Flower streets, west of Orange, last September 20.

The local firm's damage bill includes the asserted cost of repairs to its truck and a claim for loss of time.

KOO TAKES CONTROL

PEKIN, July 3.—Dr. Wellington Koo has taken charge of affairs of the Chinese government following the premier's resignation. The present cabinet is to remain without reorganization for the time being.

Convention Is Near Record Made in 1860

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 3.—When the fifty-fourth ballot was taken the convention was on the way toward equalling or surpassing all previous records of balloting in Democratic conventions.

It already had passed every record that had been made in 1860.

That year the convention began in Charleston, S. C. Stephen A. Douglas was the ultimate nominee.

Fifty-seven ballots were cast at Charleston, Douglas leading at the end, and then the convention adjourned to Baltimore where Douglas won on the second ballot.

BITTERNESS IN SESSION HITS WOMEN

Daughters of Champ Clark and Late Woodrow Wilson In Quarrel Over McAdoo.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 3.—The bitterness that has grown out of the fight in the Democratic convention included the women this afternoon with a resultant row in the Louisiana delegation involving Genevieve Clark Thomson, daughter of the late Champ Clark, Antoinette Funk, a McAdoo worker, and finally Margaret Wilson, daughter of the late President Wilson.

Mrs. Funk charged down upon Louisiana to demand that Mrs. Thomson prove charges she was said to have made that McAdoo would be indicted on charges of violating a federal statute in appearing before the treasury department only a short time after leaving office.

BETTING ODDS AGAIN TURN TO McADOO

NEW YORK, July 3.—The betting odds against William G. McAdoo's chances to become the Democratic nominee for President shortened from six to one, to four to one today following the former secretary of the treasury's "come-back" in the convention.

Dark horses were still the favorite, however, and were quoted at the same odds as Governor Al Smith—3 to 1—as compared with 3 1/2 to 1 against yesterday.

Underwood, Ralston and Ritchie were the favorite dark horses, with betting on each of them reported lively.

LAD DYING AS 12 IN FIGHT OVER GIRL

SAN GABRIEL, July 3.—For the love of a pretty San Gabriel girl, one youth is dying, several are severely injured, and six of the twelve reckless Don Juans are under arrest while the others are being sought today by local and Los Angeles authorities.

Six youths forming one band trailed the other six last night, culminating in a love feud with fists, knives and all kinds of weapons. The dying boy is Benie King who is suffering from a knife wound in his heart, physicians say.

Investigators learned that two months ago two of the boys quarreled over the love of a San Gabriel girl. And last night, twelve youths of this quiet valley town and of prominent families, ended the scrap by "fighting it out."

"30" BULLETINS

ST. CLOUD, France, July 3.—The American polo team advanced another step toward the Olympic championship here today, defeating England 10 to 2.

BANFF, Alberta, July 3.—The Chateau at Lake Louise, most famous resort in the Canadian Rockies, is burning, according to word reaching here this afternoon.

INDIANA SENATOR IN SPURT AS DELEGATES WAGE BITTER BATTLE

Smith Continues to Poll Around 320 Votes In Convention; Shortage of Money Worries Visitors As Session Threatens to Shatter Old Record

NEW YORK, July 3.—Following adjournment of the Democratic convention this afternoon, George Brennan, Tom Taggart and Norman Mack, New York National committee arranged for a conference at the Biltmore hotel.

Governor Al Smith was expected to attend and this conference was expected to develop definitely the course of action of the anti-McAdoo forces on the convention floor tonight.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, July 3.—Twelve more ballots during the morning and afternoon, making a total of fifty-four that have been cast and the Democratic party is still without a Presidential nominee.

William G. McAdoo and Governor Al Smith stood in apparent hopeless deadlock. McAdoo lost strength throughout today, but still polled 427 votes on the fifty-fourth ballot while Smith held over the 300 mark by a margin of 20%.

Neither side will give ground. Neither will entertain overtures for a conference and casting of ballots goes on and on.

On the background now is Senator Samuel Ralston of Indiana. Missouri and Mississippi went to him this afternoon—voluntarily, so Tom Taggart, his manager, declares. There are Ralston votes in other delegations but Ralston has not yet been given his "ride."

Taggart insists that he will not come out until Smith and McAdoo are convinced that neither can be nominated. Then Taggart believes the convention will turn to Ralston as the only possible compromise.

The convention is bitter and broke. Delegates are beginning to count their pennies.

The one arm lunch rooms are more popular than Fifth avenue and Broadway's gilded palaces now. Quarrels are frequent on the floor. A welcome adjournment taken at 4:30 this afternoon until 5:30 tonight probably saved the convention from even more bitterness.

Women In Clash.

The women are in it up to their eyes. Genevieve Clark Thomson, daughter of the late Champ Clark, as busy as a bee, was on the floor throughout the afternoon fighting McAdoo. Margaret Wilson, daughter of the late President came to the floor to work in McAdoo's behalf. There was a lively row in the Louisiana delegation between Mrs. Thomson and Antoinette Funk, a McAdoo worker.

Nomination by starvation now appears to be the only solution of the convention. The Smith and other anti-McAdoo forces are determined simply to starve McAdoo out, not only as to votes but as to delegates. And it also may come to the point of starving the whole convention out as to food.

The convention is broke. Delegates from the far West, the middle West and South are suffering acutely in their pocketbooks. Each side is determined to stick the thing out. But the economic pressure is getting terrific. Many delegates with friends or bowing acquaintances in New York are inquiring whether these guests wouldn't like to have some guests in an effort to escape the expense of putting up at the hotels.

Starts Slowly.

Starting slowly this morning with few people in the gallery the convention gradually worked itself up into a state of "mad" during the afternoon. There was talk of an effort to reach an agreement whereby the lowest candidate on each ballot would be dropped out. But George Brennan and others fought this.

They very pointedly told those who favored such a scheme that even if it was adopted by the convention it could not be enforced. There were rumors of possible conferences during the recess this evening and some deals are likely

Daughter Of Champ Clark Seeks Revenge For Defeat Of Father

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, NEW YORK, July 3.—Genevieve Clark Thomson is busy today visiting delegations on the floor of the Democratic convention. For William Gibbs McAdoo in 1912 was one of the followers of William J. Bryan and McAdoo was one of those who helped defeat her father, Champ Clark, after Bryan had made his historical speech that resulted in the nomination of Woodrow Wilson.

"Mr. McAdoo will never be nominated," she declared defiantly. "He will not be nominated, because there are so many of us determined that he shall not be."

It was the Genevieve Clark of twelve years ago, stirred by memories, who saw Bryan fail when he again attempted one of his dramatic coups. But today the now Mrs. James M. Thomson said:

"About Mr. Bryan—I'd rather not talk about Bryan. He seemed an awful pathetic figure, but I'll talk about McAdoo."

"I have waited for twelve

PIMPLES SPREAD OVER FOREHEAD

Inflamed and Itched Badly. Cuticura Healed.

"My trouble began with a breaking out of pimples at the edge of my hair which soon spread to my forehead. At first the pimples were very small but became larger and were inflamed. They itched badly for a while and were so embarrassing that I hated to go out. My hair fell out. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in two or three weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Georgia McMillan, 1913 Summit Blvd., Spokane, Wash., July 10, 1923.

JULY DIVORCE WAVE SIGHTED: HOAX ALLEGED

covering the alleged fraud, she left her husband, she said. Attorney Kenneth H. Burns represents Mrs. Flores.

Mrs. Dorothy B. Robinson filed suit for divorce from her husband, Martin S. Robinson, local business man, charging cruelty. Her husband neglected her, and corresponded with his former wife, she alleged. She also declared that he objected to her giving time to her talent for music. Attorney Charles D. Swanner filed Mrs. Robinson's complaint.

Phillip Schnoor of this city, claimed that his wife, Olive Schnoor, deserted him March 1, 1923. They were married at Wellington, Kan., October 19, 1907. Schnoor filed his suit through the firm of Scarborough, Forgy and Reimhaus.

Mrs. Aggie L. Prather of Anaheim sought divorce from Charles Q. Prather, whom she charged with cruelty. For two weeks after their marriage at Yorba Linda August 22, 1922, they lived with his parents, against her protests, she claimed. They then moved across the street but her husband, she said, frequently would go to his parents' home for his meals, and without word, she would be left at home with the meal waiting. Other charges made by Mrs. Prather included her husband's conduct at the Prather home. Attorneys Tipton and Catlor, Anaheim, represent Mrs. Prather.

years for an opportunity to get Mr. McAdoo and I'm going to work every minute to keep him from being nominated. Thomson looked very beautiful last night as she stood and talked about McAdoo. Her head was held high and her large eyes flashed their defiance. In a pink and white chiffon, white crepe de chine wrap trimmed with ermine and small white grosgrain she would change from a lovely woman to a defiant person and back again.

McAdoo is not the man that these people have been led to think," and she swept her hand over the audience. "He's not big enough for president—he's not fine enough—I have no faith in him and if the people knew him as I do they'd have no faith in him." "But I'm going to tell them." "I'm going to tell them and tell them—and they'll listen," she added, smiling. "Don't worry, he'll never be nominated."

Jobless Surging Into Denver from Pacific Coast

DENVER, Colo., July 3.—"What will we do with 'em?" is Colorado's concerned question, now that a tremendous back wash of drifters have turned eastward from the Pacific coast.

"We've come from the coast." One hundred or more times daily this is the answer to queries in the state employment office, Denver.

It seems that no one wants the itinerant worker this year. There is no place to send them, and certainly there is no place to keep the thousands who pour through the state "looking for work" every week.

Late harvest seasons, due to backward spring weather, have increased the problem of handling laborers. Nowhere in the Rocky Mountain district is there any demand for help—but still they come.

Foresters Plan Golden Jubilee

LOS ANGELES, July 3.—Pacific coast members of the Independent Order of Foresters, which has a membership of 18,000 in California, will celebrate the golden jubilee of the society with commemorative exercises at Avalon, Catalina island, July 12 and 13, according to an announcement here by Frank E. Hand, supreme vice chief ranger. Delegates from California, Washington, Oregon, Arizona and Nevada will take part in the ceremonies. Five thousand people, it is expected, will be present. Addresses by state officials and officers of the society, games, athletic events and excursions to points of scenic interest will make up the program. Dr. C. B. Dickinson, Los Angeles, supreme physician of the order, is chairman of the celebration.

Farmers Table Delay in Harbor Bond Vote Move

A resolution requesting the board of supervisors of Orange county to refrain from calling an election this year for the purpose of voting bonds to develop Newport harbor was tabled today by the directors of the Orange county farm bureau, meeting in monthly session in their offices in the hall of records.

A second resolution which endorsed the desire said to have been expressed by the county board of supervisors to curtail county governmental expense was passed.

A. W. Miller and J. B. Eaton were instructed to ask District Attorney A. P. Nelson to place a mounted police officer on Orange county roads to check up on trucks and tractors that are held responsible for the tearing up of roads in certain sections of the county. The arrest of drivers of such trucks will be sought. This action was taken after a report from J. L. McBride, superintendent of county highways, was read, to the effect that damage being done by trucks and tractors was twice the amount of salary for such a police officer.

RALSTON GAINS WHEN M'ADOO LOSES VOTES

before balloting again resumes at 8:30.

Starting with thirty votes from Indiana on the first ballot, Ralston held at that mark except for one or two outside ballots that fell to him through two days and nights. Then, on the forty-ninth ballot today, Mississippi switched to him with twenty votes. On the fifty-second Missouri crashed through with thirty-six and Ralston's total mounted to 93. This put him in third position in the battle of ballots.

As Ralston began to gather strength, Ed Moore of Ohio became somewhat panicky for fear part of the Ohio delegation would begin to slip. Ohio has voted for Cox throughout, but Moore stood among the delegates and made a speech to them in which he said:

"The only distinction that Ralston would bring to the party would be the definite honor of leading it to a worse defeat than did Cox."

Tom Taggart sat smiling in his chair. "I haven't asked for a vote," he said. "It's entirely spontaneous."

After Mississippi had shifted to Ralston, giving the Hoosier his first block of votes outside Indiana, his home state, Senator Pat Harrison, head of the delegation, declared Mississippi was now "home." "We are going to stick to Ralston to the end," Harrison told the United Press. "He is the most available candidate. We are for him. When we went to Ralston, we went to the home we've been headed for all along. Many other delegations are going to come along with us before long."

Oklahoma's twenty for Robinson was challenged by one of the delegates on the 50th ballot and a poll was in order.

On polling the Oklahoma delegation it was disclosed that Ralston had nine votes out of the twenty. Robinson had 10, however, which under the ruling gave the delegation's full vote to him.

Break Unit Rule

The first actual poll of strength in the Iowa delegation occurred on the fifty-first ballot when the delegates agreed to take off the unit rule for one ballot, and it was disclosed that no one had a majority of the votes. The poll showed the following distribution of the votes: McAdoo 9; Smith 8; Ralston 4½; J. W. Davis 2½; Walsh 1½ and a half of a vote in dispute.

The departure of Iowa from the unit rule brought a great cheer from the Smith and Ralston delegations but Iowa returned to the unit rule and voted for McAdoo on the next ballot—the 52nd.

Jail Fruit Vendor As Paint Burglar

Accused of having stolen a quantity of paint from a store in Costa Mesa, according to information received at the sheriff's office, Charles Alessi today was being held in jail in lieu of $1000 bail, the date for his preliminary hearing having been set by Justice John Landell for July 28, 10 a. m. Alessi, who is a Los Angeles fruit dealer, was arrested by the Los Angeles police yesterday, it was reported, and was brought to Santa Ana by Sheriff Sam Jernigan and Deputy Joe Scott.

Mrs. Mary E. Adams and Mrs. Martha J. Camperson, of Wilmington, Del., who have just celebrated their 86th birthday, are said to be the oldest twins in the United States.

end of the blanket down my throat to quiet me. My neighbors looked on in horror as he forced me into an automobile.

"Eugene drove the car and helped hold me. My husband forced the blanket down my throat till it bled, and I can now display the bloody blanket as evidence of his cruelty."

"I screamed at passing autos, but no one paid any attention. When we arrived at the county hospital he carried me to the insane ward, explaining that it was 'doctor's orders'."

"All this happened about 2 p. m. Dr. Harry E. Zaiser, in charge of the hospital, telephoned my attorney, L. F. Coburn, but he was in town. When Judge Coburn finally did arrive that night he secured my immediate release and brought me to 727 Chapman avenue, where I am protected by friends.

"In about two weeks I will have been in the county long enough to sue for a divorce, which I am preparing to do."

"We were married seven years ago. We came to Orange from Los Angeles nearly three months ago."

PARENTS, 3000 MILES APART, IN TIGHT

Separated by half a continent, the parents of Alfred and Leona Rodemeyer of Anaheim, were today engaged in a court battle for their custody.

Mrs. Alma Oelschlager of Waverly, Iowa, who is mother of the children, filed an action in the superior court here late yesterday against Carl Rodemeyer, the father, with whom the children are living, in an attempt to wrest them from him. She claimed that the children are being abused and "cruelly whipped" by their father and stepmother.

According to Mrs. Oelschlager's complaint, at the time the couple were divorced, one child, Meta, remained with her mother, while the father took Alfred and Leona with him to California. In this state he remarried, his former wife also remarrying in Iowa.

Mrs. Oelschlager declares that her former husband is a man of violent temper and that his present wife, the children's stepmother, is in poor health and therefore of an "irritable" and "irrational" disposition at times, the result being, according to Mrs. Oelschlager, that the children are often whipped without reason, and otherwise mistreated.

The girl, Leona, has fled from the home on more than one occasion, to seek refuge with the neighbors, her mother alleges. Mrs. Oelschlager's suit was filed through Attorney W. F. Menton of this city.

Woman Given 60 Day Term; Man 30

Dr. R. C. Wilkins, 35, a veterinarian, and Mrs. R. C. Wilkins, 45, who reside on West Fifth street, Santa Ana, today were sentenced by Justice John Landell to serve respective sentences of thirty and sixty days each, on charges of disturbing the peace. The couple were arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriffs Ed McClellan, Dan Adams and Ray Wallace. Both were lodged in jail.

The proposed lowering of the qualifying age for women voters from 30 to 21 years would increase the number of parliamentary voters in Great Britain by more than four millions.

Set Hearing for Neglect Case Man

J. A. Laird, 29, of Placentia, who was arrested yesterday by Deputy Sheriff Ed McClellan and Constable Jesse Elliott on a charge of non-support of his minor child, today was arraigned before Justice John Landell. Laird then was released on his own recognizance. The preliminary hearing will be held at 10 a. m. July 19, in justice court here.

Man Is Ready As Stork Arrives

Blue Cards, "It's Boy", Carried in Pockets

'Craze' Not Due To Street Noise

When W. H. Costa, Oakland advertising man who is a guest at the Rossmore hotel, began a wild dance up and down the lobby, and shouted that cigars for everyone in the hotel were "on" him, several guests at the hotel were under the impression that the noise of the drills being used on the streets had had its effect.

"Cigars are on me and I only wish it could be the drinks, too," he shouted. Simultaneously he leaped from the fourth step of the stairs to the floor, and began a merry dance.

But it was not the noise of the drills at all. A telephone call at 6 a. m. had announced the fact that Costa had just been presented by his wife with an 8½ pound son, in Oakland. Needless to say Costa lost no time in catching the first train for Oakland, but before going, he took time to distribute to several friends in the city, including Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Cahill, little blue envelopes containing a card that officially announced the visit from the stork.

"In his excitement, Costa little realized that as the new arrival was a boy, that his color scheme for the little envelopes was all wrong, but it was evident that he had been carrying the envelopes around for some little time.

Guests around the hotel who saw the cards today were wondering why Costa did not get a supply of both colors, pink and blue.

"Rapid progress is being made in laying the new sewer on Fourth street between French and Ross streets," City Engineer W. G. Knox stated today. "The Pacific Electric cars are operating on schedule without any delay because of the construction work between the tracks. Workmen are filling in the cuts and clearing the street as rapidly as the pipes can be laid."

A youngster playing with matches in the garage of Lloyd A. Gowdy, 917 South Sycamore street, was blamed by firemen for setting fire to the building yesterday afternoon. A neighbor, hearing screams from the boy, ran to a nearby alarm box and summoned the firemen, who quickly extinguished the blaze.

COMPANY DECLARES 3D DIVIDEND HERE

Stockholders of the Federal Finance company were pleased to find by the receipt of the third dividend check issued by the company, being the regular semi-annual dividend payment of four percent, plus an additional and extra dividend of one per cent.

This dividend, it was stated, reflects not only the excellent condition of the Federal Finance company, but also indicates that conditions generally in Orange county are good.

When questioned on this point, J. A. George, manager of the Federal Finance company, said that naturally the finance company, a comparatively young organization was growing, but that it couldn't grow and pay an extra dividend if conditions in its territory were not good.

Continuing, George said: "The corporation commissioner advises that we will be permitted to issue mortgage certificates within thirty days. These certificates will meet all the requirements of the careful investor who desires perfect safety, availability and a liberal income. They are issued in coupon certificate form and any amount desired."

BAPTIST GROUP IN '40 YEARS AGO' MEET

Silver service and dresses of forty years ago were prominent at the dinner and afternoon program given yesterday when the Foreign Missionary society of the First Baptist church celebrated the fortieth anniversary of its organization here.

The celebration began with an old-fashioned dinner of potatoes, string beans, beet pickles and cold raw. The tables were covered with red table cloths. Old piece of silver, such as cake baskets and castors, decorated the table.

The society also honored three of the charter members still living here. They were Mrs. C. E. French, Mrs. T. N. Wells and Miss Mamie Wall. Mrs. Jessie English, another charter member, lives at Long Beach. She formerly was Miss Jessie Millard, a teacher in the Santa Ana schools for many years. She was not present yesterday.

Special guests, who were former members of the society, included Mrs. Horace McPhee, Redlands; Mrs. B. F. Conway and Mrs. A. Otis Birch, Los Angeles; Mrs. T. O. Morse, Berkeley; Mrs. Ida Putnam, Orange; Mrs. Pope Hill, Pasadena; Mrs. Victor Langford, South Pasadena, and Mrs. Louise Hopkins, who resides near Sacramento.

130 Women Present
Some of the 130 women present were dressed in the quaint costumes of the period of the organization of the society.

Presiding as chairman of the program, Mrs. N. M. Holmes, an- nounced that the forty years ago, began in four ten-year periods.

The after-dinner program began at 1:15 o'clock, with Mrs. A. L. Bibb of Orange, director for twenty-five years of home missionary work of the society, directing the devotion services. During this period Mr. Frank Harris sang "My Lord and I," and prayers were offered by Mrs. Conway and Mrs. Putnam.

Old hymns were sung by a choir composed of men and women who were members of the church choir thirty-five years ago. It was led by J. Wiley Harris, a director of thirty-five years ago.

The special guests, guests of honor and members of the committee were presented each with a French bouquet by the pastor of the church, who also spoke briefly.

Mrs. Hopkins read a paper prepared by her grandmother, Mrs. Carey R. Smith, presenting details of the activity of the latter's daughter, the late Mrs. Daniel Haladay, in the organization here of a Chinese mission. The report disclosed that eight Chinese were converted.

A reading by Mrs. Hill, and recital by Mrs. Earl Morris of her organization here among children of a Mission band, concluded the first period of ten years of the society.

Covering the period from 1894 to 1904, Mrs. W. W. Crozier presented the names of many of the women who had been active in the work of the organization. A duet by Mrs. Mit Phillips and Mrs. Frank Harris followed.

In speaking for the third period, 1904-14, Mrs. F. L. Austin mentioned Mrs. McPhee and the late Mrs. Z. B. West as among the women who were prominent in the activities of the society. Mrs. O. S. Catland spoke of some of the things she noticed when she came to Santa Ana and became a member of the local church. She said that in the forty years of its life the society had had only twelve presidents served for eleven years. Mrs. West for seven years and other women for shorter periods.

Assisted by minutes of the society, Mrs. J. W. Harris and Mrs. C. W. Brakeman gave a complete recapitulation of the actions of the society for the period from 1914 to the present.

Concluding the program, Mrs. James Richards predicted the development and activities of the society in the next ten years. One of the interesting features of the afternoon was the fact that Mrs. J. F. Franklin, organist for twelve years, was present and accompanied the community singing in the organ she played in the church forty years ago. The old instrument still is located in the edifice where it is being kept as relic of the early days of the church.

AUTOMOBILES ARE STOLEN AT BEACH

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 3.—H. A. Ormsby of the Wilson court today reported the theft of his Ford roadster from in front of his room here last night between the hours of 6 p. m. and 11 p. m. The car carried license number 138-440, and was a 1920 model, according to the report to the police.

L. W. Park of Santa Ana, reported his light coupe stolen recently. Local police located the car June 30 in Tustin and returned it to Park.

"THE SIXTH COMMANDMENT" HERE TOMORROW
A big film with a big cast comes to the screen at the West End theater tomorrow.

It is "The Sixth Commandment" and is a splendidly told romance, finely acted by a cast that includes such stage and screen players as William Faversham, Charlotte Walker, Edmund Breese, John Bohn and Kathryn Martyn. There isn't a weak member in the pantomime array of talent that has been capably directed by William Christy Cabanne.

The old are thoroughly conversant with the sixth commandment and the young are learning it fast. In transporting it to the screen as the ground work for a thrilling photodrama, Cabanne has staged a story that is chockful of gripping climaxes, modern realism and action that carries suspense and heart interest.

"The Sixth Commandment" deals with the lives of several families of today, taking the youth that must be served, that is proud of its love affairs and relies upon the traditional family honor to keep things within the sacred precincts of righteousness and trust.

RICHARD TALMADGE FILM AT WALKER'S FRIDAY

MANY PLANNING ON ATTENDING CONCERT

Following public announcement that the Santa Ana Municipal band Tuesday night would open at Birch park its series of summer concerts, reports reached here today that many residents in various sections of the county were planning to come into the city for the occasion.

Concerts given by the musical organization and its exceptional showing made in competition with other bands of Southern California in Los Angeles recently has brought the band into prominence, with the result that hundreds of music lovers are anxious to hear it play.

It was predicted that standing room in the park would be at a premium Tuesday night. Special arrangements were understood to be being made for policing the park in order to maintain quiet.

IMPROVEMENTS AT TRACT TO PROCEED

Owners of parcels of properties composing the North Broadway Park subdivision today were hastening plans for important improvements projected in the tract, N. E. Wray, one of the owners, stated today.

Action taken by the city council Monday night in granting permission for a job in Greenleaf street, at Santa Clara avenue, made it possible, Wray said, for definite steps to be taken in the improvement program.

Arrangements have been completed with M. Nison by which North Park boulevard may be opened full width from the north end of Broadway. The opening will require a curved piece of the Nison property, on the northeast corner of Broadway and Santa Clara.

According to plans, installation of water, sewer and gas mains will proceed at once, with paving curbing and installation of cement sidewalks following.

F. W. Weissman, local merchant, today announced that within ten days he would start the foundation for a new residence on the tract, his building plans having been held in abeyance pending adjustment of situations that prevented improvements on the tract.

LUMBER PRICES HELD TOO LOW FOR PROFIT

Undoubtedly there has been a recent slackening in the lumber demand, but it has been overemphasized, says the American Lumberman, Chicago, for despite the handicap to consumption exercised by continued bad weather, total shipments for the mills reporting through eight large associations of manufacturers were only 1 per cent below production during the first twenty-three weeks of 1924—indicating that there has been no accumulation of stock.

Producers, however, decline to cut lumber at present prices, and in every region there is a tendency to curtail output. The situation at the West coast is illustrative. Although wages were recently reduced an average of 10 per cent, mills find it impossible to market lumber at prices now being offered for it, and on July 4 there will be a general shutdown. It is estimated that the small, higher-cost mills producing 22 per cent of the Southern pine total find present prices below their costs, and that conditions have forced the closing down of 37 per cent of Southern production—other curtailment being allowed for. Fall demand will see depleted stocks and buyers will find it necessary to pay reasonable prices.

A development of especial interest to lumber users is the recent increase in loanable funds, accompanied by a softening in interest rates. Although there is a sharp distinction between short time and long time rates, it is not likely that the drop of about 1 per cent in short time rate will bring in its wake a corresponding reduction in rates on investment loans. As most houses are built on credit, a 1 per cent decrease in rates would present itself to a prospective builder's mind somewhat in this fashion:
The annual interest charge on a $4300 loan at 7 per cent is about equivalent to that on a $5000 loan at 6 per cent. The easing

PLANS TO MERGE FINANCIAL BUREAUS OF FOUR MUSICAL BODIES HERE ARE OUTLINED

Tentative plans had been made today for the amalgamating the financial management of the Santa Ana band, the Orange County Choral union, the Community Choral union, the Santa Ana Symphony orchestra. These plans were discussed at a gathering held at Kotner's cafe last night. The music affairs committee of the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, which fostered the idea, called last night's meeting, and was asked to formulate definite plans and agreements.

Under the proposals discussed last night, there would be but one ticket-selling campaign, and in that campaign a ticket would be offered for the full program of concerts and productions of the four organizations.

In brief, the plan calls for the amalgamation of the four organizations into one union that will give to Santa Ana a local lyceum course of brilliance and satisfaction. The plan, too, would place each of these organizations upon a sound financial basis.

Present at last night's meeting were R. R. Shafer, who presided, and Robert Brown, representing the Chamber of Commerce committee; Burr Shaffer, Ernest C. Phillips, M. B. Wellington and Alex.

Brownbridge of the Community
Players; D. Eymann Huff and Ellis
Rhodes of the Orange County Choral union; D. C. Cianfoni, Albert Hill and Dr. M. W. Hollingsworth of the band, and Mrs. F. W.
Slabaugh, manager of the Symphony orchestra.

The amounts needed to finance each of these organizations were totaled tentatively last night, and from these totals the suggestion came that the campaign for selling of tickets might resolve itself into an effort to dispose of 2000 tickets at $5 each.

In order to reach a definite basis of agreement, however, each organization is to submit to the Chamber of Commerce committee a detailed statement of what its expenses have been for the past year and what its proposed budget for the coming year is. It is expected by Shafer that these statements will be in his hands within a week.
The proposal will then be placed in writing and definite agreements from each of the four organizations to carry out its share of the program will then be asked.

of mortgage interest rates will be a powerful stimulus to building activity.

Some students of building prospects have neglected to take into consideration that 1913 totals expressed in dollars can never be admitted as a normal for 1924, with the present increased population and higher commodity index figures. A forecast that takes these factors into consideration would show the 1924 normal to bulk up well beside the present total for national construction. It has almost been forgotten that the 1922 movement for deferred public construction produced certain results and, although large bodies move slowly, there is a movement under way to take up the slack by getting a start made on needed public buildings.

OBITUARY

Mary Josephine Davett was born in Newark, N. J., January 18, 1850, and died in Santa Ana, June 27, 1924. Her early childhood was spent around the place of her birth, but about 1860, with her mother and grandfather, she came to Illinois and settled at Fairview, in Pulaski county. Six years later she moved to Cuba, Ill., where she made her home with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs.
Neff.

On October 18, 1870, she was united in holy wedlock to P. M.
Grigsby. This union was blessed with five children, two sons and three daughters. One son and one daughter were taken to the heavenly home in infancy. The other children, Miss Grace Grigsby and Mrs. Estella Anderson of Santa Ana and Harry D. Grigsby of Warren, Ohio, survive the mother, and are here to give comfort and strength to their honored and loved father. An adopted daughter, Mrs.
H. T. Schlegel of Wausau, Wis., is also with the family today.

Mrs. Grigsby gave her heart to Christ and her hand to the church when in childhood and has walked with her Master in close and blessed fellowship all through the years. A beautiful testimony it was that the bereaved husband gave when he said, "We have been living together for nearly fifty-four years and I have never known her to do an un-Christian thing." Such a testimony is worth more to these sorrowing hearts than all the wealth and honors of the world combined. The nurse who had so faithfully and tenderly ministered to her through these last days of suffering said, "In her suffering, there was never complaint but always a smile; a hopeful and kindly word."

She was a fine Christian character; a faithful and helpful wife and a devoted mother.

Her earthly mission has been accomplished; she has finished her course; she has kept the faith and she has now gone to be with her Master and Lord in whose presence is fullness of joy and at whose right hand there are pleasures forevermore.

PROVIDE ZONES AS TRASH WAR STEP HERE

Urging residents to wage a relentless war on trash in front and back yards during the coming week, W. G. Knox, superintendent of streets, today again called attention to "cleanup" week scheduled for next week.

At the same time, the superintendent announced the organization of four zones for three-day pick-ups of trash in each city teams.

City teams will pick up trash and haul it away without cost to the individual property owner, Knox said, adding that every owner should avail himself of the opportunity to clear his premises of rubbish that is an eyesore or a fire hazard.

Gives Instructions.

"It is particularly necessary to place the trash accumulations on the curb," Knox warned. "Burnable trash should be placed in one pile and non-burnable materials in an other."

Residents in the district south of Fourth and east of main streets, to be known as district No. 1, are expected to clear their premises
Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 7, 8 and 9. Trash wagons will cover that district the following three days.

In district No. 2, north of Fourth and East of Main street, premises should be cleared Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 10, 11 and 12. Pick-ups will be made on the three days following, or Monday,
Tuesday and Wednesday, July 14,
15 and 16.

District No. 3, includes the section north of Fourth and west of Main streets, and cleaning should be done Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, July 14, 15 and 16.

Pick-ups will be made July 17, 18
and 19.

District No. 4, comprising the section south of Fourth and west of Main streets should be cleaned
Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 17, 18 and 19. Trash will be carted away Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, July 21, 22 and 23.

"I hope all citizens will co-operate in the effort to make the city clean and to eliminate all fire risks. Summer is here and dry weeds, oil-soaked rags, bundles of papers and many other things of an inflammable character create a
fire hazard."

SEAL BEACH TOTAL BUILDING $15,000

Fifteen thousand dollars were spent for buildings at Seal Beach during the month of June, according to John M. Ryan, building inspector. The majority of the permits issued by Ryan was for houses and cottages costing less than $1000. The largest structures begun last month were for a $2000
cottage on Bay Lane for L. Buehn of Norwalk; a $1000 cottage on Bay Lane for H. L. Walter; a $1000 cottage on the same thoroughfare for M. Smith of Huntington Park; and a $1000 home at the Anahem Landing waterfront for
A. L. Padrick of Seal Beach.

Persons who obtained permits last month for building costing $50 or less were J. J. Denne, Annie Simonson, Dr. M. J. Thompson, E. M. Reed, D. J. Miller, H.
H. Burns, Joe Mason, B. H. Meis-
sen, Mrs. Nellie Transue and Mrs.

Vacation Tips

The police officers at Huntington Beach are said to be the best natured in the state. This fact has never been explained but it is believed to be caused by the fact that they are spectators at daily bathing beauty parades instead of seeing them only once a year.

For that tired feeling that follows the strenuous work of the winter and spring try a summer vacation at Huntington Beach. It is guaranteed to add ten years to your life and put enough 'pep' into your system to last until next summer.

There is one man who has been coming to Huntington Beach every summer for five years. He says he's ten years younger now than when he started.

He declares he intends to keep on coming here every summer and is convinced that a few more years will see him turn into a boy again.

When father begins to go into the attic and look over his fishing tackle and sister takes her bathing suit out of the moth balls those are symptoms of vacationitis. Then remember—

Huntington Beach

Yes, We Have All This!

Five miles of shore to play on where the children play in absolute safety.
 Life guards constantly on duty—cleanest beach in the state.
 Finest municipal pier on the Coast. It's built of concrete and is 1260 feet in length.
 Wonderful fishing.
 The cleanest heated swimming pool in California.
 Some dancing pavilion! And, oh boy! What music! All under excellent management.

Regarding Transportation—

Yes! It is unexcelled. You can take your choice of five means of travel—Motor, Steam, Electric, Air and Boats.
 Yes! The finest boulevards in the state connect with Huntington Beach New Scenic Coast Highway which is eighty feet in width. Just now Huntington Beach is in the midst of a $750,000 paving program. You will find many beautiful streets and lighting systems already completed.

A Few More Things You Will Find—

Gas plates have been installed on the beach for your convenience and a turn of a faucet will bring you the finest domestic water.
 Plenty of swings for the kiddies and well-regulated entertainment concessions for young and old.
 Unlimited parking space without time limit.
 Municipal electrically lighted dining rooms for picnickers.
 Plenty of camping grounds. Reasonable room and apartment rentals.
 Day and night garages. Shady city parks and rest rooms.

This Is a Real Invitation—

Yes! The City Officials, The American Legion, Lions Club, Rotary Club, Kiwanis members, Women's Clubs, Boy Scouts, Campfire Girls and Citizens—all composing the Chamber of Commerce join in this cordial invitation.
 If you can't come yourself, send George.

Ohio Woman Is Made Executive Of Local Store

Mrs. Estella Ewing, formerly of Youngstown, Ohio, has assumed charge of the ready-to-wear department of the Rankin Dry Goods company and has completed a series of changes in personnel and policies of that department.

She has been engaged in the work for several years, largely, she says, because she finds there an opportunity to express her love for style and her ideas of style service to women.

"The style that expresses the personality of each individual woman is our big study today," said Mrs. Ewing, "and it requires more than ordinary service to accomplish it satisfactorily. I consider each woman a privileged guest of the store as long as she is in it and will expect my department to treat her as such."

BEACHES READY FOR PROGRAM ON FOURTH

Concessionaires and other business men of the Orange county beach communities today had completed preparations for meeting the demand tomorrow of the thousands of Independence day celebrators expected to gather along the county shore line.

None of the inland communities of the county has made plans for formal observation of the big holiday, and as a result it was expected the communities would be depleted of population, with interest of the merry-makers centered largely in the resorts along the Orange county and Los Angeles county shore lines.

Orange county park and other mountain places were expected to attract crowds, but not in numbers equal to the beaches.

According to announced programs, Balboa and Newport Beach are the only beach points at which there will be public fireworks displays at night.

It was being broadcast by men in the various beach communities that the ocean front offers excellent opportunity for "Young America" to vent its enthusiasm by the igniting fireworks.

Bands will give concerts at Balboa, Newport Beach and Huntington Beach. The Pacific Electric band of Los Angeles will play at Balboa, while the Santa Ana Municipal band will offer the program at Newport Beach. The Huntington Beach Municipal band will play at that city. As tentatively planned, American Legion members will parade in the forenoon at the latter beach.

The Newport Harbor Yacht club and the Southern Sailing club have arranged programs, the former for speedboat events and the latter for sailing races.

Seal Beach, Laguna Beach, Anaheim Landing and Modjeska's home are other points in the county where it is expected crowds will be entertained.

Boating, fishing and dancing are entertainment features that will be offered at all of the shore line resorts.

YOUNG ACTRESS OWES $40 BUT MISSES JAIL

Mrs. H. W. Burland, pretty young actress of San Diego, was home again today, unpacking her overnight bag, and experiencing pleasant relief not to find herself in the Orange county jail.

She owed Justice Jack Landell $40, but felt that she owed him even more than that because he, and not Justice John B. Cox, was on the bench here late yesterday when she appeared on a charge of driving her car fifty-three miles an hour.

Justice Cox, she felt sure, would have followed his well-known custom and ordered her to jail for five days, including "the Fourth."

So sure of that was Mrs. Burland that when she came to court yesterday she brought only enough funds to keep her in candy bars and other necessities of life, until she should be free again. But Justice Cox is taking a temporary rest from his duties.

So she was totally unprepared when Justice Jack Landell, frankly confessing that he "didn't have nerve to send a woman to jail," fined her $40.

But the court continued to be lenient and allowed the fair prisoner to depart on her promise to send the money as soon as she reached home.

CHAMBER MEN PLAN RALLY TUESDAY

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 3.

Plans for the community banquet to be held at the Obarr hall here Tuesday evening, July 8, as a preliminary step to the intensive two-day membership drive for the chamber of commerce for the coming year were today being completed by J. A. Armitage, secretary of the chamber of commerce, with the assistance of S. Poulter Morris of the organization service department of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce.

Preliminary arrangements for the campaign will be formulated at a meeting of the present chamber of commerce and its directors at the Obarr banquet, held Monday night, July 7, at 8 o'clock.

The campaign July 9 and 10 will be carried on by twenty-six workers under two chiefs, and six captains. A selective plan will be used in the securing of new members and the renewal of old members.

Bean Growers To Meet At Hueneme

The annual meeting and barbecue luncheon of the California Lima Bean Growers' association on Tuesday, July 8, at Hueneme, will be the mecca to which hundreds of grower members will travel from Goleta and Santa Barbara on the north and from Encinitas and Oceanside on the south, according to word received here today.

Following a steak luncheon, the annual report to directors and members will be read. According to Manager Churchill, the bean growers association has almost completed the sale of its 1923 crop holdings, amounting to about 400,000 bags. The average sale price, he added, will approximate $8.20 a hundred pounds. The marketing and handling expenses, will be the lowest for any California field crop, he predicted.

Veterans Have 1 Day Yet to File Tax Exemptions

Ex-service men who desire to take advantage of the law exempting their property, up to $5000 valuation, from taxation, have just one more day in which to file their exemption claims. County Assessor James Sleeper announced today.

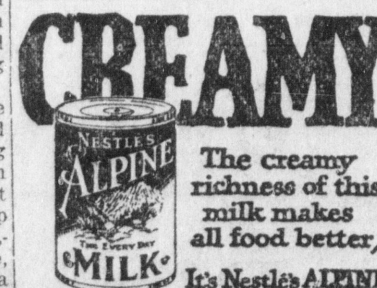

That day, he explained, really consists of two half-days. One of these is on Saturday, when the assessor's office closes at noon. The other is on Monday, the last day for receiving such exemption claims. The time expires at noon, Sleeper said.

Although most of the ex-service men and others included in the provisions of the law have already filed their claims, he thinks, there are undoubtedly some who have neglected to take advantage of their opportunity. Sleeper stated.

The assessor's office has mailed notices to all of the 1753 persons who filed claims last year and nearly all of these, it is said, have responded. There has been no check, however, of the new arrivals.

Hundreds Attend Street Dance on South Broadway

Hundreds of men and women of Santa Ana today knew definitely the location of South Broadway and St. Gertrude's Place, following the street dance given last night by the South Main Street Improvement association.

The dance was held on South Broadway, between St. Gertrude's Place and St. Andrew's Place, a section of the paved street being reserved for the dancers.

In the early part of the evening a vast throng was present, many coming to witness the novel feature of a street dance.

The younger persons remained until a late hour, dancing to strains of delightful dance music emanating from musical instruments in the hands of the Santa Ana Sextette, under direction of Glenn G. Turner.

The dance was given by the association in the spirit of enterprise that has marked its actions since its organization.

TANLAC IS MARVELOUS SAYS OAKLAND LADY

Mrs. Nicolai Gives Credit For Restoring Health and Strength.

"The friend who recommended Tanlac to me was mighty enthusiastic about it, but even then I did not expect such wonderful results as it has given me," said Mrs. R. Nicolai, 1421 37th Ave., Oakland, Calif., recently.

"For months I had been so run-down that I felt worn-out all the time. My appetite had fallen off, I suffered dreadfully from nervousness and headaches and would wake up at all hours of the night. I lost about ten pounds."

and that miserable feeling of weakness and exhaustion beggars description.

"To begin with, Tanlac gave me a perfectly splendid appetite and it was a revelation how the medicine built me up. My nerves became calm. I could sleep straight through the night and before long I regained all my lost weight. I have felt good to this very day, too. Tanlac is certainly a marvelous tonic."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

BUILDING WORK CONTINUES TO REFLECT CITY PROSPERITY

Comparatively Few Places In West Accredited With Better Permit Records

TOTAL NOW $1,154,511

June Construction Mark Is More Than Double That For Month of May

Prosperity is in the air! Official statistics prove it.

Santa Ana is setting an enviable record in building construction, far ahead of many cities larger than the leading city of Orange county.

During the month of June sixty-two building permits, exclusive of the new glass factory just outside the city limits, were issued for a total of $168,493. This more than doubles the total of building permits issued here for May and is considerably larger than the April activity, according to figures compiled by City Building Inspector W. S. Decker.

So far this year 442 permits have been issued for construction costing $1,154,511.

While the June records of other cities in the West are not yet available, a comparison with the statistics for the previous month will place Santa Ana's record of last month ahead of the May records of all cities in Idaho and Nevada, being surpassed by only one city in Utah, two in Oregon, three in Washington and one in Arizona.

In California Santa Ana ranks twentieth in a comparison of last month's building total with the highest May totals, which are the latest available here. This city boasts of passing the mark set by

Petition For Widening of Bristol Street

Citizens in the northwest part of Santa Ana are clamoring for street improvements.

A petition now being circulated among residents in this section and which is reported to have virtually all the required signatures, calls for widening of Bristol street between Fifth and Seventeenth streets from forty to sixty feet.

W. F. Croddy and John Estes of the West-Northwest improvement association have announced their intention to circulate a petition calling for the paving of Washington avenue the full width of the thoroughfare from Lowell street to Artesia street.

Public Library Circulation in 1000 June Gain

An increase in circulation of more than a thousand books over the number loaned by the Santa Ana public library in June, 1923, was reported for last month by Miss Jeanette McFadden, librarian, who announced last month's circulation as 14,071.

During the twenty-five days the library was open to borrowers last month 3965 books were issued to adults, 38 per cent of the volumes being non-fiction.

Miss McFadden reports 378 new cards registered for borrowers and 300 new books added to the shelves.

What the scientific experts in the United States and Canada have failed to do has been accomplished by an Englishman, Miss Mackenzie, an experimenter employed by the ministry of agriculture. Her discovery concerns the method of preserving fruit in liquid in such a manner that it retains its natural colors.

SAYS BUSINESS DECREASE NOT DEPRESSION

Many Important Industries Producing More Than During '23 Period

Another period of prosperity is predicted by Roger W. Babson, statistician and business authority.

"Whether we are having a business depression," said a statement issued by Babson, who has the figures of present activity for every important industry in the country and for virtually every trading center, "depends a great deal on your point of view and what you mean by depression."

He continued: "By comparing the present position of general business with the depressions during 1907, 1920 and 1921 we find nothing similar to those situations nor is there any prospect of such a development at the present time."

"In spite of the fact that forty-two leading industries claimed a 10 per cent decrease in activity during the past year, statistics show that fourteen of these forty-two classifications now are producing as much as or more than they were at this same period in 1923."

"Bakery products are running about 6 per cent ahead of last year, the beverage business is leading by about that same margin. Brick manufacturing is about 10 per cent ahead of a year ago, cement shows just a 1 per cent increase. Women's clothing, jewelry and printing and publishing are running about the same as last year. Meat packing is 2 per cent ahead of last year's figures while petroleum products show an 8 per cent gain, and piano manufacturing is running 10 per cent ahead of last year."

"For five years, between 1915 and 1920, business ran continuously above normal and developed a great period of inflation. During 1920 and 1921 and early 1922 we suffered a rather drastic readjustment. It did not entirely offset the inflation of the previous area, however, and the premature boom of early 1923 could not last under such conditions. Apparently we are now going to complete the readjustment in an orderly fashion and prepare for another real period of prosperity."

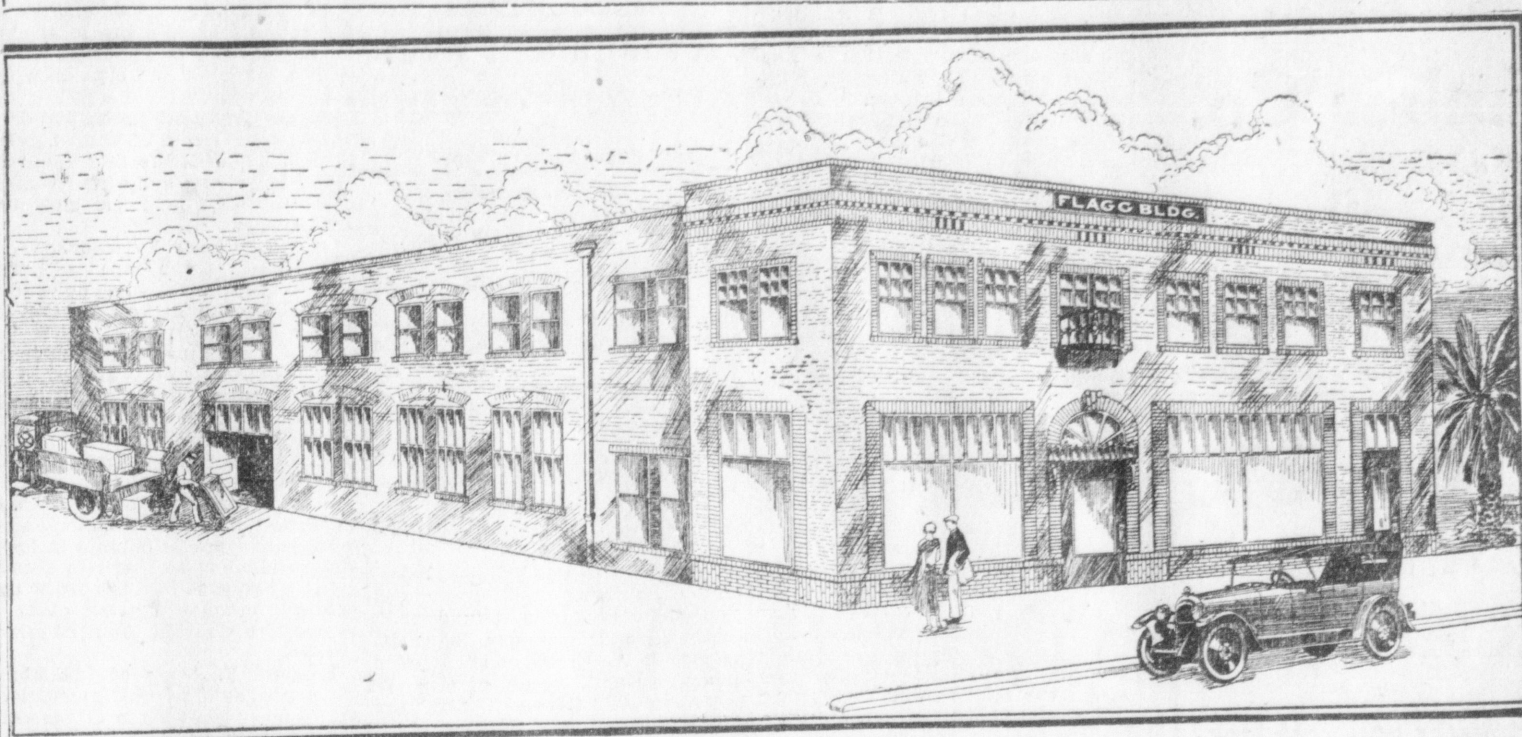

Seal Beach Will Get Smokestacks

Reports from Seal Beach received today stated that the foundation for the first unit of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric plant was nearly completed. The structure will have three concrete smokestacks 375 feet high and with a diameter of 32 feet at the base and 15 feet at the top.

The hot water from the plant eventually will be piped into the bay and possibly in the future may be utilized in warming a plunge that will add to the attractions of Seal Beach.

NEW BROADWAY PLANT TO HOUSE PRINTING FIRM

Being constructed at a cost of approximately $25,000, the new building will be ready for occupancy about October 1.

COMPANY ADDS 140 FOOT LOT TO BIG YARD

W. V. Whitson, manager of the Whitson Lumber company, today announced purchase by the company of additional ground for its yards at the corner of Fifth and Artesia streets. By purchasing from H. E. Johnson a lot on Fifth street with frontage of 140 feet and extending south to the Pacific Electric tracks, the company now has acquired ownership of a five-acre tract originally owned by Johnson.

According to Whitson the company later will utilize the new tract in expanding its yard and equipment. A large warehouse will be built, he said. According to Whitson, when the construction is made, the company will carry there virtually everything that was required for building work. A warehouse, 30x60, has just been completed at the corner of Fourth and Artesia streets.

The company's property now has a frontage of 490 feet on Fifth street and 250 feet on Artesia street.

Asserting that building costs today are approximately 10 per cent less than at this time a year ago, Whitson said that he expected costs to increase a little this fall. "Building operations in the country districts has increased materially since the lifting of the quarantine imposed during the fight against the foot and mouth disease," Whitson stated.

SHIPPING PORT MOVEMENT AT H. B. BEGUN

Old timers of Santa Ana who recall the time when the pier at Newport Beach was used for unloading many shiploads of lumber interpret a movement of Huntington Beach citizens as a step to place that city on the map as an important shipping center, according to information received here today.

With the announcement that a group of men next Monday night would urge the Huntington Beach board of trustees to extend the pier 600 feet into water that is 27 feet deep at low tide, the long-time residents of this district are expressing their belief that such an improvement would enable the beach city to enjoy the same lively commerce that was enjoyed a quarter of a century ago when a steam railroad met lumber schooners at the Newport Beach dock where as many as three loaded vessels often were tied at one time.

In "the good old days," according to E. M. Smiley and other freight trains often operated day and night between Santa Ana and the Newport Beach pier until the Newport Wharf and Lumber company, which owned both the pier and the railroad, went out of business. Since that time the wharf railroad had been abandoned and the pier has been partially rebuilt.

Local lumbermen today are clamoring for a harbor to renew a still greater commerce than was enjoyed when the Newport Beach pier was in its glory.

It is with these recollections that the older citizens of this vicinity see great possibilities for Huntington Beach should the present pier there be extended. An unsheltered ocean pier is not considered as a good unloading point during a rough sea, and it is admitted that very few vessels could be accommodated at the small dockage space provided by such a pier as is being discussed for the beach city.

The plan disclosed by the proponents of the pier extension may cause some of the Orange county harbor boosters who last Thursday cruised Los Angeles harbor, to recall the impatience of one of the Huntington Beach delegation who good-naturedly remarked during the excursion:

"If the people of Orange county don't get busy pretty soon so they can capitalize on their own natural harbor at Newport Beach, Huntington Beach will pile a lot of dirt into the sea and build a harbor around the pier that's already there."

The plan as announced by Following completion of the foundation, laying the brick work for the walls for the two-story building being erected at 114 North Broadway for A. G. Flagg, local printer, was progressing here today.

With completion of the building, three enterprises absolutely new in Santa Ana will be opened here. For the first time in the history of Santa Ana a plant will be available for making newspaper and other cuts used in art work in connection with printing.

The building is to be 44x96 feet and the entire lower floor will be used by Flagg for his job printing plant, commercial art department and book bindery. Flagg said he would make a number of important additions to his printing equipment.

The second floor will be occupied by four different firms, each having a business enterprise that correlates with that of the business which Flagg is operating. The lines will be photo engraving, commercial photography, steel and copper plate engraving and rubber stamps. With the exception of commercial photography, all of the business enterprises will be new in Santa Ana.

There will be more than fifty employees in the building, Flagg declared, with a daily payroll of approximately $250 obtaining, said the print shop owner.

"We are making our plans for operating in our new plant on the first day of October," he concluded.

Multiple Listing Of Farm Realty Being Considered

Application to farm lands of the same co-operative selling plan which is used in city real estate by the multiple listing bureau of real estate boards, a plan which has been under discussion by the farm land division of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, is being seriously considered by the California Real Estate association.

Co-operation of realtors in listing farm lands is expected to aid in making farm property a more liquid commodity. It is also expected to work toward the standardization of real estate commissions over the state, and to extend to farm land dealing the exclusive contract system which has proved of mutual advantage to client and agent in the sale of city real property.

It is estimated that with one hundred dealers enrolled in the exchange the cost of putting a property before each dealer will be just half a cent, whereas the service to the owner will be multiplied greatly over what has formerly been possible.

Two More Homes To Be Constructed

Plans for the construction of two homes were announced today by Building Inspector W. S. Decker, who issued building permits to Mrs. Elsie Umathum of 1244 West Fourth street and Dan Hassett of 1079 West Second street.

Hassett will construct a five-room residence and garage at 907 North Olive street. The new home will cost $3500. Mrs. Umathum is superintending the construction of a cozy two-room "California house" at 1921 West Second street. The little home will cost approximately $1000.

Appoint Leipsic Subdivision Head

Harry Leipsic, former dry goods merchant and now a Santa Ana real estate broker, today announced that he had been appointed Orange county manager for Central Memorial park, cemetery subdivision near Westminster. He has established his headquarters at room 219, Ramona building, he said, from which point he also will operate his real estate business.

COMPLETE S. A. STREET WORK AUGUST 1

Persons in downtown stores and offices who claim they are being driven insane by the din of the constantly pounding compressed air chisels that have been "wrecking" Santa Ana's streets are being urged by W. G. Knox, city engineer, to get over the "shell-shock" of the noisy air hammers long enough to realize that the city council and officials of the Southern California Edison company are fulfilling the needs of a Greater Santa Ana by ordering contractors to tear up downtown streets for installing facilities to accommodate a business district of skyscrapers.

When the part of the work which is being done by the power company has been finished, the business section will present a more pleasing appearance than at any time since tall wooden poles were placed along streets and alleys here, Knox declared.

Complete Work Aug. 1.

Motorists and pedestrians who have been inconvenienced by the condition of certain downtown streets will have only until the end of the present month to wait before they can venture about the business district "with only one eye opened," as the work of laying sewers and conduits is expected to be completed and the "dug-up" places resurfaced before August 1.

Rapid progress is reported in the laying of a large sewer line on Fourth street from Ross street to French street. This sewer will accommodate a district several times the size of the one which will use the line, according to Knox, who explained that it never again will be necessary to tear up Fourth street for greater sewer facilities regardless of the growth of the district served by the new line. The much-needed Fourth street line is expected to relieve the asserted congestion reported at various times in the First street sewer.

The power company's program calls for laying power wires underground in conduits large enough to fulfill the needs of the downtown section for many years to come, thus replacing the unsightly overhead wires which have been strung from poles in the streets and alleys.

The Edison company's work was begun here May 12.

While the sound of the compressed air chisels may be disagreeable to some, it is considered a sign of business activity and prosperity to others. The laying of conduits represents an expenditure of $37,000 of which $6000 a week is being paid the men working on the streets, according to J. P. Rayer, district superintendent of the company, who has direct charge of the street work here. Forty men are laying the conduits.

HOUSES ONCE VACANT NOW IN DEMAND IS CLAIM

Influx of Many Newcomers Presages Brisk Future Says Local Realtor

During the past ten days Santa Ana has been experiencing greater business activity than noticed at any other similar period during the past few months, according to numerous prominent businessmen who are in close touch with general conditions here. This acceleration in business activity is especially noticeable in real estate circles, it was stated.

Houses in all parts of the city, that have been vacant for several months, are being occupied by families from other sections of the country, according to J. C. Wallace, local realtor.

"Usually at this time of the year houses are vacated by persons who go away during the vacation season," Wallace said, "so when we see these empty places filling up rapidly at this time of the year we can expect a brisk future in Santa Ana."

"We have had more calls for houses during the past ten days than during the three months prior to that period," declared Carl Mock, another realtor. "During the last few days we rented apartments at Second and Flower streets, to four families; we rented several houses on Pacific avenue and in other parts of town and we sold the house that Roy Russell and I owned, on Santa Ana Heights, to Elizabeth Russell. Other houses owned by Russell and sold during the past few days include the one at 518 North McClay street, purchased by N. H. Cox; 522 North McClay, purchased by W. B. Card, and 418 West Santa Clara avenue, bought by Merle Morris. I'll say it's good times."

Notes Rush for Houses

A. V. Napier, industrial realtor, said he also had noticed a recent rush for houses.

"And why shouldn't there be?" he asked. "Conditions are far better here than in nearly every other part of the United States. Visitors from the east are so pleased with Santa Ana that they are renting, buying or building homes here. There are very many reasons for them to build in this city at the present time. Houses that could be built for no less than $7000 last year can be built for only $6000 now, and property values are steadily increasing."

Stanley E. Goode, another real estate dealer, also is enthused over present prospects. He said: "The future outlook in real estate is good. We all have been hustling to make both ends meet during the past few months, but have looked more to the future to give us our usual volume of business."

"The indications at the present time is that the middle of August will see real estate quite active."

Prices Readjusted

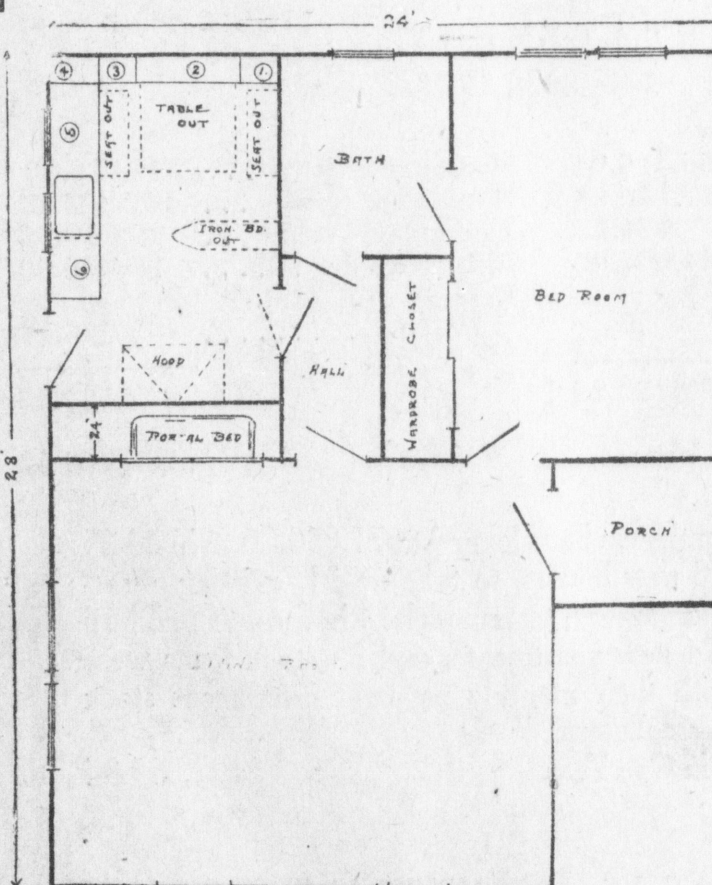

"Prices now are readjusting themselves and a good many persons realize that this is the time to purchase."

"During the past few weeks the calls at our office have probably doubled over the few weeks previous. This clearly indicates to me that persons with a few dollars to invest conservatively, realize the opportunity of the present time to buy."

"When times are dull is a good time to put on an extra head of steam and get prepared for the buyer. A few dull months have given us a multitude of real good buys, so that the buyer today finds us all better prepared to show real value and to deliver a service that was impossible during the rush times."

"I believe we are out of our slump and can look ahead with some real optimism."

MISS ALIAS

BY DOUGLAS GRANT

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Sally Peck, employee of the Fair Deal Five & Ten, on her way home to supper, meets the crippled son of a railroad switchman. She had told him that his father is drinking and that he is worried for fear he may be the cause of disaster.

She passes on to the home of Ma Brennan, with whom she lives. Ma is reading in a New York paper an account of a big diamond robbery in New York. She tells Sally she has something to ask. Michael, the policeman, when he comes to call on Sally.

Sally is heartbroken and angry because her friend Michael is seen at the Empire Theater, with Ma Brennan. She is told that Michael has taken Ma home more than once lately. Ma prepares a steak for Sally but Sally can not eat it.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Mike won't be here," Sally rose. "Sit still, Ma, I'll do up my dishes."

"You've ate nothin'! That store'll be the death of ye, an' glad I'll see ye out o' it for good an' all!" Ma Brennan exclaimed meaningfully. It don't seem that Michael was any sooner out of the army and back on the Force than he loses the uniform again, this time for a shield! Youngest plainclothes man—Why Sally, child!

"Don't talk about Mike any more, Ma!" The girl spoke through set teeth. "I—I don't ever want to hear his name again!—Oh, there's somebody on the porch! I'm going upstairs."

But she was too late, for after one stupefied glance Ma Brennan waddled to the door and opened it, admitting the stalwart subject of her interrupted eulogy.

"Hello, Ma!" The hearty voice of Detective Sergeant Michael Curtis boomed through the little kitchen as he shook her hand. "How are you tonight?—Where's Sally—?"

His roving glance had passed her and stopped and the eagerly expectant smile died on his lips for the girl confronted him from the stairway with blazing eyes.

"I thought you were on duty tonight," she spoke jerkily in an effort at calm.

"No, last night—" Sally caught him up with withering scorn. "I'm busy to where you were last night, Mike Curtis, and other evenings besides when you're pulling this 'duty' stuff and getting away with it—not! Why ain't you at the Empire tonight, listening to her tickle the ivories?"

His face whitened beneath the tan and then colored a dull red while a hurt, half-bewildered look came into his brown eyes, like came into a faithful dog which has been kicked when he expected a caress.

"Sally—girl! You don't understand!" He advanced a step or two pleadingly as Ma Brennan gasped and looked from one to the other of them. "You've got to listen to me! You've got to right to tell you, to explain—"

"There's some things that don't need explaining!" Sally struck the banister rail sharply with her small fist. "What you done is your business, Mike, and who you run around with; thank goodness, I never give you any reason to think you had to hand me an excuse!"

"No—reason!" Michael's jaw set. "I told you I was on duty; I couldn't say any more before—" "And you can't now, not to me! Say, listen, Mike, and get this straight—" She paused and then said slowly through lips grown suddenly white. "I don't want to see you again, not ever! I hate lies, and I'm through!"

For a moment longer he gazed at her and back of the hurt look in his eyes something else dawned which she had never seen there before. Then he drew himself up, bowed stiffly and wheeled as though on parade, to lay his hand for a moment on Ma Brennan's shoulder and then pass with a firm tread out into the night.

Sally flew up to her room like a small whirlwind and locked the door before her trembling hands sought a match. Mechanically but with feverish haste she undressed, avoiding her own eyes in the little mirror over the dresser, then turning out the gas she opened across the bed, her whole body shaking.

"Nobody lied—said that I cried about you—oo!" One of the Thorntons' new records blared mockingly from the phonograph below the door, and from the kitchen below on the left of their own two-family house came the sickening odor of vinegar, spices and hot grease as Mrs. Schmidt and her son Oscar prepared the following day's supply for their delicatessen store, but Sally and odor were alike swiftly annihilated when the Western Limited roared past, shaking the flimsy frame houses and leaving the creeping stench of coal-gas in its wake. Poor crippled Hughie Robbins' pa was not so far gone in drink that he had forgotten his job.

Presently Ma Brennan, sniffing audibly, crept with heavy-footed caution up Sally's door and then passed on to her own. The odors of sautéed meat and boiling smoked meats ceased to rise from below and the wheezy phonograph was silent but at intervals a slow freight hauled along, its reeking breath blowing in at her window, and still the girl lay with hot, dry eyes staring into the darkness.

The trains grew less frequent and in a period of silence a distant clock boomed the hour of midnight. Dawn brought a sharp nip of cold and the gentle snow fall of rain presaging a steady downpour. With the first patter of drops on the tin roof Ma Brennan's bed springs jiggled and the thin parson creaked and her groans were as she shuffled heavily to the room. In a twinkling she was up, in a twinkling she was slipping and a flimsy wadded pillow landed on her head. "What left me clothes out would have to worth hundreds of dollars!" she wailed, "but with the rain over any tire, and me like the thrains en-swore—"

"Don't you bother, Ma! I'll get it all in quicker'n you'd have one piece off the line!"

Sally ran down the stairs, dropping her slippers by the way and unlatching the kitchen door, stepped out barefooted into the cold, every mist of rain. Nearly half-past five! The milk train was late and the famous Gotham Arrow almost due—there, she could hear the distant humming of the rails which told of its approach. Soon it would go hurtling by with its streak of tiny electric lights in the gray dawn.

Shivering, Sally gathered the thin robe about her and started down the back yard between the rows of sagging clotheslines heavy with their curtains of damp, grimy linen.

Then like a bolt from the heavens a clanging, reverberating crash shook the earth and before Sally could turn, before the first shriek of rending wood and steam and human agony rose upon the air something struck her a violent blow on the head, a huge weight rushed upon her from behind, pinning her down and her world was blotted out.

CHAPTER II
The Changeling
THE girl in the Marie Antoinette bed stirred without opening her eyes. One sensation at a time

But she was too late, for after one stupefied glance Ma Brennan waddled to the door and opened it, admitting the stalwart subject of her interrupted eulogy.

"Hello, Ma!" The hearty voice of Detective Sergeant Michael Curtis boomed through the little kitchen as he shook her hand. "How are you tonight?—Where's Sally—?"

His roving glance had passed her and stopped and the eagerly expectant smile died on his lips for the girl confronted him from the stairway with blazing eyes.

"I thought you were on duty tonight," she spoke jerkily in an effort at calm.

"No, last night—" Sally caught him up with withering scorn. "I'm busy to where you were last night, Mike Curtis, and other evenings besides when you're pulling this 'duty' stuff and getting away with it—not! Why ain't you at the Empire tonight, listening to her tickle the ivories?"

His face whitened beneath the tan and then colored a dull red while a hurt, half-bewildered look came into his brown eyes, like came into a faithful dog which has been kicked when he expected a caress.

"Sally—girl! You don't understand!" He advanced a step or two pleadingly as Ma Brennan gasped and looked from one to the other of them. "You've got to listen to me! You've got to right to tell you, to explain—"

"There's some things that don't need explaining!" Sally struck the banister rail sharply with her small fist. "What you done is your business, Mike, and who you run around with; thank goodness, I never give you any reason to think you had to hand me an excuse!"

"No—reason!" Michael's jaw set. "I told you I was on duty; I couldn't say any more before—" "And you can't now, not to me! Say, listen, Mike, and get this straight—" She paused and then said slowly through lips grown suddenly white. "I don't want to see you again, not ever! I hate lies, and I'm through!"

For a moment longer he gazed at her and back of the hurt look in his eyes something else dawned which she had never seen there before. Then he drew himself up, bowed stiffly and wheeled as though on parade, to lay his hand for a moment on Ma Brennan's shoulder and then pass with a firm tread out into the night.

Sally flew up to her room like a small whirlwind and locked the door before her trembling hands sought a match. Mechanically but with feverish haste she undressed, avoiding her own eyes in the little mirror over the dresser, then turning out the gas she opened across the bed, her whole body shaking.

"Nobody lied—said that I cried about you—oo!" One of the Thorntons' new records blared mockingly from the phonograph below the door, and from the kitchen below on the left of their own two-family house came the sickening odor of vinegar, spices and hot grease as Mrs. Schmidt and her son Oscar prepared the following day's supply for their delicatessen store, but Sally and odor were alike swiftly annihilated when the Western Limited roared past, shaking the flimsy frame houses and leaving the creeping stench of coal-gas in its wake. Poor crippled Hughie Robbins' pa was not so far gone in drink that he had forgotten his job.

Presently Ma Brennan, sniffing audibly, crept with heavy-footed caution up Sally's door and then passed on to her own. The odors of sautéed meat and boiling smoked meats ceased to rise from below and the wheezy phonograph was silent but at intervals a slow freight hauled along, its reeking breath blowing in at her window, and still the girl lay with hot, dry eyes staring into the darkness.

The trains grew less frequent and in a period of silence a distant clock boomed the hour of midnight. Dawn brought a sharp nip of cold and the gentle snow fall of rain presaging a steady downpour. With the first patter of drops on the tin roof Ma Brennan's bed springs jiggled and the thin parson creaked and her groans were as she shuffled heavily to the room. In a twinkling she was up, in a twinkling she was slipping and a flimsy wadded pillow landed on her head. "What left me clothes out would have to worth hundreds of dollars!" she wailed, "but with the rain over any tire, and me like the thrains en-

News from Orange County

BEACHES READY FOR HOLIDAY THROGS

NEWPORT BEACH, July 3.—

The twin beaches, Newport Beach and Balboa, will be in fine trim for the Fourth of July, says Harry Welch, secretary of the Harbor chamber of commerce. He declared this morning that the committee in charge of arrangements had completed its work.

The Pacific Electric band of thirty-five pieces will take the platform at Balboa; while the Santa Ana band will officiate at Newport Beach.

The Newport Harbor Yacht club has planned a number of speed boat races, and, not to be outdone, the Southland Sailing club has announced its annual regatta for the Fourth.

J. P. Greeley, one of the members of the committee and a director in the chamber of commerce says:

"It is safe to say that there will be more fireworks on the beach at Newport and Balboa than anywhere else in the county. On the beach they can do no harm and here they will be able to satisfy the most exacting."

"On the ocean the speed and sail boats will vie with each other in different events for the separate classes. Newport Harbor Yacht club has many well known boats owned by its members and one of the latest boats to come under Newport ownership is the California, of the "R" class, which has been purchased from the California Yacht club by an ardent yachtsman of Newport Beach, Lyman Farwell. It is expected the California will spread her canvas on the nation's birthday."

CENTRAL POWER PLANT URGED FOR CITIES

FULLERTON, July 3.—W. C.

Record, city engineer, after an intensive investigation, announced before the board of trustees that a municipal power and electrical plant could be installed at approximately $100 per horse power, this to include cost of building, machinery, etc.

Councilman W. J. Carmichael proposed a meeting with the officials of Anaheim with the purpose in view of building a combined plant to serve Anaheim, La Habra, Fullerton and the towns adjacent. It was pointed out that this would tend to allow all the towns involved to supply power at a small cost.

The council requested the city engineer to take this up with the Anaheim Council and report his findings at the next meeting of the board.

HONOR CLUB OFFICERS.

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kreighbaum, of this city were the hosts here Monday evening to a large number of the present and ex-officers of the Amaranth club of Southern California. The party was held at the municipal banquet hall. Approximately sixty five people were present. Refreshments were served by a number of the women, including Mrs. Roy Hilliard and Mrs. Ruth Hurd. After the dinner the party enjoyed the American Legion Carnival here.

BOOSTER CLUB URGES CITY TO BUILD ON POWER PLANT; EDISON COMPANY FLAYED

SEAL BEACH, July 3.—At the Boosters Club meeting held Monday night a motion was passed to have a set of resolutions drawn up and copies sent to Southern California Edison Company, the State Railway Commission, the governor of California and the Board of City Trustees of Seal Beach.

Following is the resolution: Be It Resolved, by the Boosters of Seal Beach:

That, Whereas the Southern California Edison company have arbitrarily and without notice, reduced by more than one-half, the amount of power and light; they obligated themselves to furnish the various communities in Southern California, and at the same time propose to increase the cost of their product to the consumer, and the irreparable loss of the whole of Southern California, by following a policy of expansion, to the point of collapse, without giving any need to reserve or auxiliary maintenance. This public utility corporation has struck a vital blow at every manufacturing and commercial institution, almost every farmer and householder in the southern end of this state and this vital blow has been struck without warning, like a bolt from the clear blue sky.

And be it further resolved: That we denounce in unqualified terms, the arbitrary and unjustifiable repudiation by this corporation of its contracts with the citizens of Seal Beach.

That copies of these resolutions be sent to the Southern California Edison Company, the State Railway Commission, the Governor of California, and the Board of City Trustees of Seal Beach.

That we further resolved: That we denounce in unqualified terms, the arbitrary and unjustifiable repudiation by this corporation of its contracts with the citizens of Seal Beach.

Kiwanian's Son At Fullerton Is Given Welcome

FULLERTON, July 3.—

Things were coming in the general direction of Ray Wilson of this city yesterday.

Early in the morning Mrs. Wilson presented him with a baby boy and in the afternoon the Kiwanis club presented him with a purse of over $20. Fullerton Kiwanis has reversed the apocryphal custom of passing cigars and instead of the proud parent expressing in a material way his joy at becoming a father, the club members each throw in fifty cents to open a savings account for the new-comer.

LIONS WARNED OF DANGERS FROM 'REDS'

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 3.

Baroness Ottily de Ropp, was the speaker of the day at the Lions club meeting held at the Obarr banquet hall here yesterday noon. Baroness de Ropp gave a very interesting talk on "Americanism." In her talk she stated that she had discovered secret societies existing in Los Angeles schools which have been started by the Communists.

"The societies teach the doctrine of 'no God, no Country and no Flag' instead of the American ideal of 'one God, one Country and one Flag,' the Baroness stated.

Efforts will be made to secure the Baroness for future engagements in this city it was stated by several who heard her. William Wright and L. W. Blodgett were the chairmen of the day at the meeting. Sam Bowen gave the club a short talk on the formation of the machine gun company to be a part of the national guard in this city. L. W. Blodgett also gave some pointers on the machine gun company.

Miss Pauline Latimer of this city furnished several violin solos. David Clifford Dunnica gave an interesting sleight of hand performance. S. Poulter Morris, of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce gave a talk to the club on the reorganization of the chamber of commerce here.

KELLEYS ANNEX FIRST INDOOR BALL FRACAS

Excelsiors Turned Back In 14-13 Battle; Druggists Plan Challenges

Making its initial start as a representative Santa Ana club, the Kelley Drug company indoor baseball team at the Y. M. C. A. athletic field last night defeated the fast Excelsior Creamery company aggregation of Santa Ana by the score of 14 to 13.

The game was bitterly contested from the opening frame and only a determined rally in the closing inning when Bill Cole, Gene Thomas and Kellogg crossed the platter in succession enabled the Kelleys to record their hard fought victory.

The Kelleys intend to add several well known stars to their ranks in the next few days and then issue challenges to a number of strong Santa Ana teams as well as several outside aggregations.

JUNE FINES TOTAL $1130 BOOKS SHOW

HUNTINGTON BEACH, July 3.—Fines for the month amounted to $1130, it was shown by a report of City Recorder C. W. Warner here. Of this amount $70 was collected for alleged infractions of motor vehicle acts. The remaining $1060 was collected for various alleged violations of the Volstead act, ranging from illegal possession for which a maximum fine of $300 was imposed, to drunkenness for which a $50 fine was imposed.

Six persons were today in the county jail as a result of not being able to pay their fines. Included among these are Mr. and Mrs. Tony Smith, who were recently sentenced by Judge Warner to pay a fine of $300 or spend 300 days in the county jail. They were unable to pay their fines. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were newcomers in this city from Montana. Three cases were dismissed during the month out of a total of twenty-eight cases brought before Warner.

WHO ARE YOU GOING TO BE FOR WHEN THIS TINY GIRL PLAYS McKANE? SO ARE WE!

HELEN WILLS

Although thousands of tennis enthusiasts all over the world were disappointed when Suzanne Lenglen withdrew from the Wimbledon tournament, every sportsman in America will be wishing little Helen of Berkeley luck when she opposes Miss Katherine McKane of England in the finals.

This seems to be the era of the college player in major league baseball.

Many of the outstanding stars of the present season came direct from their alma mater to the big show.

Once upon a time it was a rarity for the collegian to jump from the educated circuit to the majors and make good from the start. Now it is not at all unusual.

There was much ballyhoo when Sisler delivered, also when Francis Frisch won a berth as a regular Giant, without either having had any professional experience.

Now little more than passing attention is called to the success of the college trained player.

In American League circles, Ernie Wingard, direct from the University of Alabama, has proved very troublesome to American League batters. Wingard is a southpaw.

Usually the chance for the college pitcher to make good is more limited than an outfielder or infielder. The belief is that the pitcher needs a certain amount of experience before being able to cope with big league batters.

After watching Wingard for five weeks, in which he was permitted to pitch a few innings, Manager Sisler of the Browns decided that he was ready.

To justify the opinion of his manager, Wingard went out and won his first six starts, a most remarkable performance.

Two unusual incidents that came up in his first few starts convinced me that Wingard had a great chance to make the grade in the majors. I will briefly recite them. Both happened against the New York Yankees.

In his first game against New York, with Ruth at bat, he threw a slow ball to "Babe" with the count three and two. Ruth was so surprised that he popped up. Manager Sisler, knowing that Wingard had no change of pace, walked over to his rookie southpaw as much surprised no doubt as Ruth.

"Where did you get that one, Ernie?" he asked.

"Just made it up for the occasion, manager," was his laconic reply.

In his second appearance against the Yankees, Ruth was up in a pinch, where a home run might change the result of the game. Catcher Severid and Manager Sisler walked over to the box to confer with Wingard, but before either had a chance to say a thing, Wingard remarked:

"I think we ought to pitch to

The two talented contenders—the Fuller Paint company and the Kelly Roofing company—were "in" today with the Fullers still in the cellar despite their excellent showing last night when they nicked the Roofers for three out of four points.

Santa Ana post No. 131, American Legion, clinched the championship Tuesday night when it disposed of the Orange Standard Oil company, 4 to 0.

LA COSTE DEFEATS LAST U. S. PLAYER

WIMBLEDON, July 3.—K. Norris Williams II, lone American survivor in the men's singles of the Wimbledon tennis tournament, was eliminated today by the French star, Rene La Coste, who won three of the four sets. Score: 6-1, 3-6, 6-2, 6-3.

Miss Helen Wills and Mrs. George Wightman won the first set of the semi-final match in the women's doubles, 8-6 against their fellow countrywomen, Miss Eleanor Goss and Mrs. J. B. Jessup.

Wingard's courage satisfied Sisler as to what course to pursue. Ruth grounded out to the infield.

The collegian is a fixture in major league baseball. Perhaps a dozen collegians with no professional experience have qualified for big league berths this year.

That showing speaks well for the liberal advantages of a college education.

Monday night, July 7: will be American Legion night at the Broadway bowling academy. Proprietors Gaspar and Anderson announce the all receipts from the alleys between 8 and 12 p. m. will be turned over to the welfare board fund, it was announced.

Prizes to be offered include a box of cigars by the Roehm-Sylvester company; a case of soda pop by the Santa Ana Bottling works; a bottle of perfume by Schroeder's pharmacy, and a pair of ladies' silk hose by the Peterson shoe store.

CARD BOXING SHOW AT BEACH TONIGHT

With Young Farrell and Billy Ryan in the leading roles and Kid Mexico and Ted Frenchie in supporting parts, a six-out boxing show will be staged at the Huntington Beach arena tonight, the first card arranged in Orange county in recent months.

Farrell and Ryan are two of the best known bantamweights on the Pacific coast. Promoters of the bout claim they are offering a regular Vernon or Hollywood main event.

In the wild swinging, colored Frenchie, Mexico is squaring off with one of his old-time opponents. Frenchie is something of a comedian but he is a hard hitter and he can take 'em.

Four preliminaries open the show.

KINSEYS FAVORITES IN TENNIS TOURNEY

LOS ANGELES, July 3.—With three teams already qualified for the semi-final round of the Pacific Coast tennis doubles championship, it was believed that close of play this afternoon would see the finalists picked for tomorrow's deciding match.

By fighting through to a win over the once-invincible combination of McLaughlin and Bundy, the Kinsey brothers present title holders, won their way into the upper half of the semifinals. They will play the winners of the Neer and Davies.

Bates and Allen match, the last set of which was to be played today.

In the lower half of the draw Westbrook and Snodgrass met Godshall and Ferrandini for the right to play in the finale tomorrow. Yesterday the former team defeated Sindorf and Warren.

New Western Golf Queen Formidable U. S. Tourney Entry

MRS. H. D. STERRETT
HUNTINGTON, Kan., July 3.—A concentrated bundle of nerves and nerve—that's Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, better known as Sally Sterrett, new champion of the Missouri Valley Golf association. Mrs. Sterrett wrestled the title from Miriam Burns of Kansas City, also holder of the women's western championship, recently, at Topeka, Kan., winning at the 20th green.

Mrs. Sterrett's steady play won out when the match seemed about to end after Miss Burns had her three down at the 13th hole. The Hutchinson woman staged a great comeback and took four straight holes.

Mrs. Sterrett will be a formidable entry in the western championship tournament, which she will enter, and she probably will enter the national. She has been playing golf six years and has won the Kansas championship four years in succession.

DANCING
Fourth of July Carnival Dance Friday night, lots of fun and a real time. Newport over bath house. Dysart's Orchestra.

Only once has Wheat been able to crash out more than 200 safeties in a campaign, doing that in 1922 when he made 201 safe swats. His best stolen base record was 21, compiled in 1911 and 1915.

The Well-Dressed Man
By BEAUNASH
Correct Clothes To Meet The Obligation Of Every Occasion

Sports Of All Sorts
Darksome at their best and dismal at their worst, men's clothes have need of every touch of color that can be borrowed to give them spirit and sparkle.

As town dress is traditionally stilted and stodgy, it is the sporting kit to which one must turn for the vivid and picturesque. In the open, the gayest of colors do not look amiss. The blues of the sky, the green of the turf, the purple of the hills and the crimson and orange of the sunset form the true background for those brilliant colors which have latterly vaulted into vogue.

The pursuit of the sport bespeaks youth and sunshine and "Up-With-The-Lark" and "Glad-I'm-Alive!" This is reflected in the dress of the modern sportsman; in his light suits, checker-board stockings; blazer-striped belts; strikingly striped sweater jackets; bright-hued scarfs and caps showing the boldest of plaids which, a few years ago, would have been laughed off the links.

When sport was in its knickerbockers in this country, we gave but casual notice to the details of our field turnout. Any old thing, or even anything old, would serve. Today, one finds sportsmen paying the most circumstantial heed to their suits, boots and hats, differentiating punctiliously between this and that purpose and pastime.

The sketch pictures some of the smarter details of current sporting dress, including the correctly proportioned cap: the long-pointed sweater collar; the spotted foulard scarf and the outline of the V-neck sweater, often striped in a color gayly contrasting from the ground. To be sure, a soft straw, such as the Panama or Leghorn, or one of the new light-colored featherweight felt hats may be substituted for the cap.

The thing to be mindful of in one's field kit is that every article of dress should follow some well-defined color theme, be it green, brown, gray, Lovat and the like. This does not mean stick monotonously to a single color, but, rather, carrying a glint, the same color consistently through suit, sweater, stockings, scarf, shirt and belt. To accompany light-colored linen knicker belts of the same material are procurable. To wear with flannel trousers, the belts are of white webbing finished with leather trimmings.

A PUZZLE A DAY

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

A Good Right to Worry

—BY MARTIN

Yesterday's answer:
It is a liner, 608 feet long, traveled its own length in 30 seconds. It would make a mile in five minutes. For miles at sea are understood to be nautical miles, and a nautical mile measures 6080 feet, with a few inches over. 6080 is 10 times 608, the length, in feet, of the ship. Hence, the answer of 5 minutes is correct to the nearest second. (A "statute" mile, used for land measure, is only 5280 feet.)

Yesterday's answer:
It is a liner, 608 feet long, traveled its own length in 30 seconds. It would make a mile in five minutes. For miles at sea are understood to be nautical miles, and a nautical mile measures 6080 feet, with a few inches over. 6080 is 10 times 608, the length, in feet, of the ship. Hence, the answer of 5 minutes is correct to the nearest second. (A "statute" mile, used for land measure, is only 5280 feet.)

EVENING SALUTATION

It is not growing like a tree
In bulk doth make man better be;
Or standing long an oak, three hundred year,
To fall a log at last, dry, bald, and sere:
A lily of a day
Is fairer far in May.
Although it fall and die that night,
It was the plant and flower of Light,
In small proportions we just beauties see:
And in short measures life may perfect be.

A SAVING OF EFFORT

The proposal for the amalgamation of the ticket-selling campaigns and financial management of the Choral union, the Santa Ana Symphony orchestra, the Community Players and the Santa Ana band, into one organization should meet with encouragement and success. That it will meet with success is indicated by the spirit of co-operation and friendliness exhibited at last night's meeting of representatives of the four organizations with the Chamber of Commerce committee.

Any movement that reduces the number of "drives" in this city should meet with encouragement. Instead of four, there will be but one campaign. Moreover, if the plans that have been proposed work out as there is every reason to believe that they will work out, the patrons will be given a much better program for half what it would cost them were they to buy tickets to the productions that would be offered by all four of the organizations.

Each of these community organizations has a high community value. Each should be placed upon a sound financial basis at the beginning of the season. The financial problem will not interfere with the artistic efforts of the organization.

The radio is still far behind the grade-crossing as a means of establishing contact with the Infinites.—Life.

INTERNATIONAL POLICING

Another job for the League of Nations, and a remarkable one! A recent cable from Berlin declared that the League would assume the military control of Germany. Adequate control has been insisted on by France, and agreed to by England, as a necessary preliminary to putting the Dawes reparation plan into effect, but it was expected that the allies would do the controlling themselves. Under the new plan the League would take over the functions of the International Commission.

This would mean virtually the international policing of Germany, and would make the League of Nations the supreme police power in Central Europe. It is already exercising such functions with regard to Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria. It is a strange sequel, indeed, to Germany's war for the conquest of Europe.

The Germans, needless to say, do not relish any kind of foreign supremacy in their country; but they would rather have an impersonal and widely representative body like the League of Nations do the work than France, or an allied body dominated by France. It is expected that, if this plan goes through, Germany will then emerge shortly as a member of the League herself.

Such police supervision, exercised with the consent of the policed countries, is legitimate and unobjectionable. Will a time ever come when the League, or some similar body, is in position to apply supreme police power to preserve peace and order without the consent of the country concerned, by a sort of a federal world authority, using its own specially trained policemen of the air, land and water forces.

A living wage is what the other fellow should be able to live on.—Columbia Record.

A HAND IN REPARATIONS

Only the most irreconcilable "bitter-ender" can object to the participation of the United States government in the forthcoming "premiers' conference" to discuss methods for putting the Dawes reparation plan into effect. This is giving government recognition to an obvious public desire.

The American participation in the work of the international committee of experts headed by General Dawes was of a private nature. Though unofficially approved by the government, it did not commit the government. But so great has been the public response to its work that it is impossible for the government to ignore the new reparation plan even if it desired to do so. The invitation from the British government was welcome, and its acceptance almost inevitable.

It is announced that participation will be confined to "such matters as affect the interests of the United States, and otherwise for purposes of information." That is a broad field, if liberally interpreted, because there are few details of the German reparation problem which do not affect the interests of the United States in one way or another. America has billions at stake, and the peace of the world may be involved. It is far safer to be represented in such a business than to have no representation.

A movement has been started in Los Angeles for daylight saving during the summer months. It is very doubtful, however, if any purely local plan of that sort is feasible. The people of the rest of Southern California would be put to considerable inconvenience if Los Angeles banks and business houses ran on a time schedule an hour different from that of the rest of Southern California. The city would have two kinds of time—standard and local—and that is always a confusing situation. The Press is strong for the daylight saving that we had during the war, a national system fixed by federal law; but any local plan is little better than a nuisance.—Riverside Press.

UNCLE DIGS UP BONUS MONEY

It was said, when Congress adjourned, that nothing could be done about paying the bonus, or even about perennials for payment, because Congress had not voted any money for the purpose. The urgent deficiency appropriation bill failed of passage in the final hurry of the session.

Yet the government is going ahead, just the same, sending out blanks and making ready to pay when the applications shall have been approved.

It is the old, familiar story of Congress passing the financial buck to the Treasury Department, and the Treasury managing, by hook or crook, to make good on the expenditures ordered and save the credit of the government. Always the Treasury, just like Father at home, digs up the funds somewhere when he has to, in order to meet expenses incurred regardless of the family income. It always has been so; and Congress, like a thriftless housewife or scraggy son, banks on that fact.

The Russian bolsheviks are threatening war on the Turks. It would be heart-breaking to see either side win in a war like that.—Nashville Southern Lumberman.

"Frills" In Education

San Bernardino Sun

A member of the board of education of a large California city has expressed himself against so many "frills" in the curriculum of the public schools. He would get rid of them all and go back to the simple and fundamental studies which constituted the school courses in the days of old. It is becoming more and more uncommon to hear demands that the schools revert to the "Three R's" and cut out all things not promotive of the ability to read, write and figure. That is all that is necessary to get along in the world, say these adherents of things as they used to be, and that is all that should be taught at public expense. Let those who want something more than these essentials get it elsewhere, say the proponents of simplicity in education.

Opinions on this subject depend entirely upon one's conception of the mission of the public school. Fundamentally the school is a citizen factory. Unless the nation has intelligent, capable citizens of sterling integrity it can not survive as the kind of nation it was and hopes to continue to be. Therefore, it is obviously the duty of the nation to see that such citizens are provided. This is the warrant both for the public school itself and for laws making attendance compulsory. The nation is safeguarding its future by giving its prospective citizens the right sort of training for citizenship. The degree of education we undertake to give them, its character and variety must be determined by what kind of citizens we imagine we need.

If we want only plain citizens, those who have just enough education to do the humble tasks of life, though possessing qualities which might be developed for much higher and more valuable service, then the "Three R's" are enough. But our great prosperity as a nation has come from the fact that we have had in increasing numbers yearly citizens capable of great achievement for the common welfare in greatly varied lines of activity. Surely we need such citizens, whether chemists, civil engineers, doctors, lawyers, preachers, geologists, mining engineers, lawyers, business men, artists, musicians, or any of the multifarious special lines of useful activity which go to make up the sum total of our modern society. If we need all these in our social composite it is proper and legitimate to train them, and what may seem like "frills" to some who do not comprehend all these things, are not necessarily such, but may be vital in the development of valuable faculties in the pupils. The real criticism of our public school system is that it is as much the duty of the State to train citizens for character as for intellectual qualities, and we are not devoting as much attention to that phase of public education as we should.

Stern Measures Fruitful

Fresno Republican

The pronouncement from Washington regarding the success of efforts to stem the foot and mouth disease in California is warrant enough to us in this part of the state to rejoice in what has been accomplished, without fear of weakening the efforts toward complete quarantine of whatever instances there may yet remain of danger from the disease.

Had it not been for the firm and thorough efforts that were made at the beginning, by state and local quarantine officers, soon reinforced by the federal authorities, it might have been possible for the let-alone theory of disease control to have prevailed. We would have had a wide dissemination of the seeds of the disease, with a thousand more or less animals suffering at treatment of the symptoms, rather than an extermination of the root of the trouble.

The expert authorities must be given ample authority to surround any outbreak of the disease with a ring of disinfection.

The cost already has been rewarded in the resultant cleanliness to the state. It is a result which will be fruitful in the renewed confidence of the people of the East in the determination of the people of California to be clean.

Measured by Autos

San Francisco Chronicle

The Smiths lead the automobile owners of California. The Johnsons are next, with the Browns taking but little dust from them. Close up are the Williamses and the Joneses.

In other words, automobiles are distributed in California in almost exact ratio with the distribution of names. That is surely a democratic distribution. It also means that the possession of wealth enough to buy an automobile has a very general apportionment in this State.

It would be hard to find a better illustration of the fact that California is a State where prosperity holds out both hands to everyone.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M. D.

TO BEAT THE HEAT

There will come days of hot weather that will cause prostrations more or less throughout the entire country. The old-fashioned methods of treating these are still good enough. That is, a cool shady spot with cold water to head and chest. A little later, if the attack has been severe, enough to cause collapse, one should give stimulants and actually apply heat to the body to induce perspiration.

But you've often read about the natives and others of hot countries who really know how to beat the heat. They simply go off to sleep during the hot part of the day and give their bodies a complete rest, because the real cause of heat exhaustion is that the intense heat has interfered with your own heat centers, and has actually paralyzed them.

The trouble is actually due in most cases to the fact that you can't get rid of the natural heat of the body, and the natural waste matter that should go out of the body by perspiration. And yet if you work, you manufacture more heat and waste matter. If an electric fan is working near you and you are perspiring well, the amount of heat and waste matter of which you rid your body is enormous.

Under conditions of this kind, if you are in good shape physically you can endure a great amount of heat.

If your circulation is poor and you are in a run down condition generally, then in very hot weather it would be wise for you to follow the custom of the people of hot countries, and lie down in as cool a place as possible during the middle of the day.

But the real way to beat the heat is to have yourself in good physical condition, with a heart muscle strong enough to send the blood around the body and to the skin with good force.

Then with the skin kept clean with a daily bath, and light loose clothes that allow a good circulation of air next to the skin, you help the evaporation of the heated water from your body.

Eat light food that is easily digested in small amounts, even if you have to eat an extra meal a day. Cut down on your meats and heavy pastries. Keep out of the sun. Have your windows protected from the sun, and then you can keep some windows open. Don't do any more work than is absolutely necessary during the hot part of the day. And another big thing. The refrigerator for the body at all times, is an empty large intestine.

"This Freedom"

SONG

Follow a shadow, it still flies you:
Seem to fly it, it will pursue:
So court a mistress, she denies you:
Let her alone, she will court you.
Say, are not women truly, then,
Styled but the shadows of us men?

At morn and evening shades are longest:
At noon they are short or none:
So men at weakest they are strongest.
But grant us perfect, they're not known.
Say, are not women truly, then,
Styled but the shadows of us men?

—Ber. Jonson.

On Taking Advice

Northern Furniture

You may disregard advice, but listen to it. Don't sneer at it, no matter who the person is that offers it. There is a Scotch saying, "Many a fool has helped a wise man." Even the worst advice presents one side of a question.

A clever and successful Boston merchant once said that he always wanted advice—not necessarily to follow it, but to help him make up his mind. If you once get this idea about advice, you will be very much the gainer. No other person can present all the points of view in a business problem, and a man about to take an important step should be able to know what is all around the skyline of his affairs.

If you have time, listen to everything everybody has to say. If you haven't the time, always listen to anything that is presented strongly, whether or not it agrees with your present opinion. You may change your opinion some day.

Above all things, never scoff or make light of the criticism—with its implied advice—of an enemy. It is there that your weakest points are exposed. If you are wise you will be thankful for the opportunity to strengthen them.—Northern Furniture.

Worth While Verse

WINDS OF EROS

I love to think this fragrant air
I breathe in the deep-bosomed night,
Has mixed with beauty and may hear
The burden of a heart's delight.

This may have been the burning breath
That uttered Deirdre's love. It may Have been a note outlasting death
As Sappho gave her heart away.

It may have fanned a joy so deep
That Ilium must pay the price,
And under desert sand must sleep
Heroes and towers in sacrifice.

And this rich air, it may have been—
To bring these dreams, so sweet a throng—
Sighed by the lovely listening queen
While Solomon had sung his song.

So it will take from me, from thee,
Ere from our being it departs.
And keeps for lovers yet to be
All the enchantment of our hearts.

—A. E. in the Irish Statesman.

Yee gods, dont ask me wat I think, pop sed, Wat did she charge you? he sed.

O not so much, ma sed, Its certy mawrells the way they seem to know things, Willyum, its all mostuncanny, she sed, and pop sed, Barnum was rite, one sees the lite of day every 60 seconds, wat did you say she charged you?

She was very reasonable, ma sed. It was the most uncanny thing, Willyum, she told me to be ware of a dark man, and I hadent left her place more than 5 minits wen an enormous colored man stepped on my foot in the street car and I thawt I'd pass away with the pane.

I hope you balled him out as he deserved, pop sed, and ma sed, Certyntly not, wile I was in the fortune teller knew it was going to happen, so it wasent the colored man's fault, because wat must happen must happen.

Yee gods, pop sed, and ma sed, Yes, and wen I got off the car I bawt a magazine that had the news stand, and I discovered later he short changed me 15 cents, but I didnt go back, because wat must happen must happen. Izzent that uncanny, Willyum, ma sed.

I should say so, it makes me see a grate lite, pop sed.

How do you mean? ma sed, and pop sed, Mr. Lewis has very dark hair, hasent he?

Wats he got to do with it, I never liked that man, ma sed, and pop sed, He wanted me to come to the club and sit in on a poker game tonite and I told him I wasent sure but now I know Im going because that fortune teller proved it. Lewis has extra dark eye brows, too, pop sed.

For pity sakes, thats stretching it too far, ma sed, and pop sed, No, wat must happen must happen, so I mite as well get it over with. Dont sit up for me, he sed.

And he changed his slippers back to his shoes and went out.

IN THE LONG AGO

JULY 3, 1910

L. D. Hayes, a motorcyclist, was in the hospital suffering from concussion of the brain as the result of a fall from his mount at Sixth and Main streets last night when he struck a horse and buggy. Eye witnesses said Hayes was traveling fifteen miles an hour.

Emily West, 1007 Riverine avenue, suffered a broken collar bone when she was knocked from her bicycle by an automobile. The accident occurred at East Fourth and Porter streets.

The Santa Ana band will play at the July 4 celebration at Newport Beach if enough funds can be raised to pay for the transportation and eating expenses of the men.

The Santa Ana Ebell club held its concluding business meeting of the season yesterday.

Santa Ana defeated Covina in the second game for the Southern California championship. The score was 15 to 13.

Fake Hindu Mystics

San Francisco Bulletin

Ever since the international convention of religions, held in Chicago many years ago, there has been a steadily increasing stream of Oriental mystics pouring into America. Some of these seers have been men of character and of learning with a message of genuine value to earnest seekers after truth. But there have been others—many others. Of these it may be said that they range from men with little learning, but good intentions, to exhibitors that are in hysticism merely as a business. In place of coming with a message of value, they have come seeking the profits, and in certain cities the competition has been unusually keen. Each claims a monopoly of the truth and each brands the other as a faker. There is a limited amount of credulity in such matters in every city; a limited amount to be placed in the weekly collection plate, and naturally, not all the mystics have been able to make a living. The successful are denounced by envious brethren as imposters, and the term not always has been misplaced.

But the worst of the Hindu peddlers of Oriental mysticism is better than many Americans and Europeans that masquerade as initiates into the inner mysteries of the Far East. Some of our near professional mystics have never traveled beyond the Oakland mole, though as a rule they find it discreet to do business in states other than those in which they are known as plain ordinary individuals unable to make a satisfactory living at more useful occupations. A few of these home made fakers have had even the effrontery to make books on the subjects which they have no more than a elnding library knowledge. As a rule they affect long hair and a vague and wandering expression. It is one of the tricks of the trade to look as though long contemplation of the esoteric has profoundly changed their whole demeanor. Another is to speak in cryptic sentences designed to create the impression that they are far, far holier than those that listen to them. As a rule they are discreet enough to evade the laws against fortune telling, but they run a sideline in prophecy as to the future of their victims. If the dupe be rich the future will be bright, and in the hope that the reward will be commensurate.

It is obtaining money under false pretenses, but generally is done in such a manner as to evade prosecution. But it will continue to be done as long as the world keeps on proving the truth of Barnum's immortal maxim that there is a sucker born every minute.

Exploring New Mexican Ruins

A National Geographic society expedition, headed by Neil M. Judd, has left Washington to begin its fourth year of exploration at the ruins of Pueblo Bonito, New Mexico, giant "apartment house" of prehistoric times.

More than 300 rooms have been cleared and many kivas, or circular ceremonial chambers, already have been exposed to the desert sunlight. Only three years ago the great ruin was only a vast heap of rock and earth, fallen walls and wind blown accumulations of uncounted centuries.

The explorations revealed that Pueblo Bonito was a busy village confined within a single dwelling. When inhabited it stood four stories high, included some 800 rooms, and sheltered 1,200 or more persons.

Explorers Operate Railroad
Four teams and a miniature railroad operate to remove the vast quantities of debris from the huge ruins. Last summer alone 20,000 tons of debris—enough to fill a freight train of 400 gondola cars—were removed.

If in this haystack of the centuries a ton of litter yields a bit of pottery, a tiny bell or a wisdom tooth the history prospector thinks he has struck "pay dirt." Most of the actual work is performed by Indians.

No written record or hieroglyphic inscription was left by these ancient Americans. But it already is possible to piece together their life story from the evidence of the silent walls of their abandoned rooms and the scattered objects recovered from the deserted dwelling. Their daily activities, their civic organizations, their communal enterprises and their struggles against more warlike tribes can be pictured. It is evident that the Bonitan, who lived in what now is the Chaco Canyon National monument, in northwestern New Mexico, probably had the most pretentious settlement in the southwestern United States in pre-Columbian times.

Pueblo Bonito, Tutankhamen
With the penetration of the Pueblo Bonito ruins the early history of America has begun to attract world interest—an interest being augmented with the sending of a National Geographical society expedition to uncover the great mound of Cuicuilco in the Valley of Mexico, which may be 8,000 years old. Of the relation to Pueblo Bonito to other explorations Dr. Judd says:

"There is a bare possibility that some cultural connection will be found between the former inhabitants of Pueblo Bonito and the Maya, ancient temple builders of Yucatan and Guatemala. There absolutely is no chance of tracing any relationship between our his- toric southwestern tribes and those of the Old World. Tutankhamen and his fellow Egyptians represent a high stage of cultural development along the desert borders of the Nile; the ancient Bonitan surpassed all their contemporaries in the desert regions of our Southwest, but the prehistoric peoples of America and Egypt had nothing in common."

OF THE TWINS

NO. 21—A TRIP TO MEXICO

A queer flower was growing in the magic garden the next night when Johnny Jump Up and the Twins climbed down the rose vine. It was bright red with long narrow velvet petals and a yellow center.

It looked very bright in the moonlight.

"Why, that's a Christmas flower," cried Nancy. "Mother gets a pot of them every Christmas."

"Yes, you're right," said the little fairy man. "It is a Christmas flower, but it has another name—a long queer name that I suppose you will forget the minute I tell you. But that doesn't matter. It is called poin-settia."

"Does it grow up where Santa Claus lives?" asked Nick.

"No," said Johnny Jump Up. "It grows in the south. Even further south than we have been on our travels. In fact, it grows in another country altogether, called Mexico."

Just then Tommy Titmouse came hopping up. "Say," he said crossly. "Is that where we're going to night—to Mexico?"

"Yes, sir!" said the little garden fairy. "That's where we're going, Tommy."

Then for the land's sake," said Tommy, "why aren't we moving? That's some distance to travel before sunup. Where are your tickets? I can't take passengers without tickets."

"That's so," said Johnny Jump Up. "I'll have to find out if the Fairy Queen sent them."

Yes, she did, and here they were! cried another little fairy, suddenly appearing on one of the red velvet blossoms. She was very beautiful, the new little fairy was, and she was dressed in a sort of Spanish dress. She had a high comb in her hair with a lace scarf over it.

"Oh, are you a Mexican fairy?" asked Nancy.

"Yes!" nodded the tiny creature. "And I hope you will like Mexico." Before Nancy had time to answer, Tommy Titmouse hopped up on a green stem beside her.

"Just let me see the tickets," he said, "and I'll punch them with my bill. All aboard for Mexico!"

Away went the three of them, Nancy and Nick and Johnny Jump Up, on Tommy's brown back.

"Keep on going until you come to the Panama Canal, Tommy," said Johnny Jump Up. "Here we are. Stop on top of this mountain."

So Tommy stopped and they all looked down at the canal, which is a sort of river through the mountains.

"A few years ago," said Johnny Jump Up, "the canal wasn't here. It was all mountains just like this mountain we are on. The Atlantic ocean was on one side and the Pacific ocean on the other side of these mountains."

"But some men thought they could fix it so the boats could go through. After digging hard for several years with thousands of men, they got enough of the mountain cut away so that the boats could meet. And that is the Panama Canal."

Johnny talked so much, I'll have to tell you about the rest of the trip tomorrow.
